Cost of Armored Cars For Hoover Going Up

By MARK BROWN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation is hiking the cost of the four armored limousines that carry FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover around Washington, New York and Los Angeles.

In 1970, the FBI had to pay $27,655 for an armored limousine, Hoover told the House Appropriations Committee in testimony released today.

"In recent years we have experienced an increase in cost and the principal reason for this has been the escalating cost of armoring the cars," Hoover said.

To maintain the four-vehicle fleet—two in Washington and one each in New York and Los Angeles—the FBI buys a new one each year and sells one of the old ones, Hoover said.

The topic of the armored vehicles was raised in the March 17 hearing by Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., who noted "there has been some comment in the press" about them. It prompted this exchange between Sikes, Hoover and Clyde Tolson, Hoover's assistant:

Hoover: "The armored vehicles are used for protective purposes."

Tolson: "Mr. congressman, during the calendar year 1970, Mr. Hoover received 26 threats on his life and so far this year, he has received another 16 threats. It is necessary for security reasons for Mr. Hoover to be transported in these vehicles."

Hoover: "The attorney general and I have used the armored vehicles when we were required to be in New York City and Los Angeles. The vehicles are available as the needs arise for investigative purposes."

Sikes: "I can understand how it is necessary that you have an armored vehicle available for your protection."

FBI Budget

Hoover testified in behalf of an FBI budget request of about $333 million for fiscal 1972, an increase of some $30 million over the current period.

Hoover also told the committee former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark had covered him with sirupy praise before publication of a book that sharply criticized Hoover and the FBI.

Hoover found a sympathetic audience in Rep. John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., chairman of the committee.

"He did the same thing to me," Rooney said. "He spoke at a dinner held in my honor at the Waldorf Astoria in New York and lauded me to the skies. As a matter of fact, it was to me a little sickening, he was laying it on so heavy."

"He was too sirupy," Hoover agreed.

Primary Opponent

"He later attacked me and endorsed my primary opponent, ignoring everything that he had said just a year or so before that," Rooney continued.

"He did the same thing to me," Hoover said.

Hoover denounced Clark as a "jellyfish" and a "softie" last November following publication of Clark's book "Crime in America."

In it, Clark said Hoover had dragged his feet in joining the attack on organized crime and attributed the reluctance to Hoover's "self-centered concern for his own reputation."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is heading toward new controversy over the U.S. military role in Laos, with Sen. Stuart Symington seeking a $200-million ceiling on American spending there.

Symington, D-Mo., said security classification prevents him from disclosing the amount being spent on U.S. air operations and support of forces fighting Communist units in Laos.

But the total was reported by other sources to be at least $250 million a year, and possibly much more.

While the Senate met in secret session Monday to discuss Laos, the State Department confirmed the United States is providing financial and other support to forces in Laos.

Volunteer Troops
Press officer Charles Bray described those troops as volunteers, and said the U.S. support program is consistent with the law.

Symington said they are mercenaries. "My personal opinion is that the law has been contravened, yes."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who proposed the amendment forbidding use of U.S. funds to support foreign forces fighting for the governments of Laos and Cambodia, said he thinks that law is being violated.

The amendment excludes actions that would help promote withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam, or release of American prisoners of war.

The closed session, seventh for the Senate in five years, lasted three hours and 25 minutes, more than twice as long as planned.

Actuality Different

"I reported to them, in effect, that what was actually going on in Laos was quite different in some details than we have been told," said Symington, who proposed the secret session.

"We believe that quite a few Thai people, irregulars and regulars, are fighting in Laos. We

All three were also charged with housebreaking and larceny in connection with the theft of 50 fragmentation grenades at the camp.

Concealed Weapon
Green and Gipson also were charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

The spokesman said a pre-trial investigation was continuing. At its conclusion Col. John C. McWhorter Jr., commander of the 23rd General Support Group at the base, will decide whether the case will go to trial.

The arrests followed a joint probe by U.S. military police, South Korean army investigators and Korean police, an Army spokesman said.

Sixteen of the 50 stolen grenades are still missing, he added.

Greenwood is an airframe repairman, Gipson a fuel and electrical repair specialist and Green a driver.

The grenade explosions at the camp occurred about a month after a brawl between black and white soldiers in a bar near camp that was followed by racial disturbances on the base.

About 150 black soldiers demonstrated at U.S. military headquarters in Seoul last month, charging racial discrimination.

think that contravenes the law recently passed by Congress.

"We would have known more about it if there had been a ceiling on the money they could have spent, and they would have had to come before us to ask for more authority," Symington said.

He said his amendment would forbid spending more than $200 million a year in Laos, unless the administration asks specific authority to spend more.

The ceiling would not apply to cost of U.S. air operations in southern Laos, in the area of the Ho Chi Minh trail. But it would cover B52 bombing missions and other air involvement over the northern part of the country, as well as support of foreign forces.

Staff Estimate
Fulbright said his staff estimates the cost of U.S. air raids over Laos at over $500 million a year, not counting the B52 missions only recently disclosed.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., estimated the sum involved in operations away from Communist supply routes in the south to be at least $250 million a year.

He said that was $100 million more than he had known about.

The closed Senate session was called to hear Symington report on findings of two Foreign Relations Committee staff men who visited Laos last April.

That still-classified report, by James G. Lowenstein and Richard Moose, reportedly tells of Central Intelligence Agency financing of about 4,800 Thai troops in Laos.

Premier Nihat Erim proposed today sweeping constitutional amendments to increase the government's power in the face of leftist terrorism.

The amendments would affect about a third of Turkey's present liberal constitution, stiffening it in an effort to bring law and order. The changes also would strengthen the powers of the executive branch.

A key change is the addition of an article which would prevent constitutionally guaranteed basic rights and freedoms from being used to destroy the democratic regime or to split the country into racial, religious or class divisions.

In a nationwide address on Turkey's state radio and television Erim said "Turkey cannot live permanently under martial law."

He was referring to the proclamation of martial law April 26 in 11 provinces, including the largest cities, after a wave of organized and armed leftist mi-

Erim's proposal includes these provisions:

—Opening the door for creation of special courts in emergency situations.

—Giving the government power to pass laws by executive decree subject to later parliamentary approval.

—Making it easier for the government to declare martial law.

—Giving the government greater control over labor unions, universities, the press and state radio.

—Giving the government power to proclaim a state of emergency in case of natural disasters, epidemics and serious economic crises, with special powers to be determined by law.

Erim asked Turkey's major political parties to discuss the proposal and give it final form for passage through Parliament. A two-thirds majority would be needed.

It was expected that the proposals would pass, possibly with some but not major changes.

Public Works Projects Will Suffer if Labor Dispute Isn't Settled

Appleton public works projects face possible interruption if current labor negotiations in Street between Water Street and State Street reach settlement. City Engineer Thomas Harp reports.

He quoted one contractor Monday as having said that negotiations are expected to have "firmed up one way or the other" by the end of this week.

That means, he said, either that "they'll walk out or they'll have things squared away and be working under a new contract."

Five basic construction trade unions are negotiating toward new contracts to replace pacts that expired June 1. Carpenters and painters have been on strike since last Tuesday, while laborers, masons and Teamsters continue working.

One project scheduled for this summer already is being held up. Harp said the Oscar Boldt Construction Co. has been awarded the contract for repairs to the Oneida Street drawbridge, but is waiting to start work until after new contracts are drawn.

The bridge has been malfunctioning because concrete paving on the hillside south of the bridge is slipping, pinching the end of the bridge and interfering with its raising and lowering for boat traffic on the government canal.

Harp said the contractor estimates the job will take 60 days and is reluctant to begin work until negotiations are over, to avoid prolonged traffic tieups if the work starts and then is halted by a labor dispute. Traffic will have to use Memorial Drive and S. Lave Street as detour routes during part of the project, Harp said.

Harp also issued the following summary of the city's other projects scheduled for this week:

— Northeast sanitary sewer trunk line. The contractor is working in the vicinity of Glendale Avenue, east of the Municipal Service Building. With good weather the pipe line will be completed in a week, and crews will begin cleanup over the total project area.

— Sanitary sewer installations South side. The contractors are working in the Park Hills Subdivision on Weimar Street and Tracy Court just south of John Street.

Supervision for Boy, 15, Ordered

A year's supervision by the Outagamie County Department of Social Services was directed Monday for a 15-year-old Appleton boy found delinquent in Juvenile Court.

The youth pleaded guilty to five offenses, three of them stemming from a burglary March 27 at Appleton High School-East. The boy stood before C. Bernard Dillett, acting judge in Juvenile Court here.

The petition said the boy broke into Reid Municipal Golf Course, 1100 E. Fremont St., March 14, and stole $55 from three coin-operated machines. He stole $122.50 from 11 vending machines during the March 27 burglary at the school, according to the petition. An additional count of truancy was lodged when the boy ran away from home April 4.

Dillett ordered restitution for the stolen money and damaged equipment. One of two other juveniles involved in the offenses has been scheduled for an appearance in Juvenile Court, a detective said.

The gift of a boat to the Peters Group Home near Shioclements areas that could be created through uncontrolled donations directly or indirectly to the county and its agencies.

The request went to Corp. Counsel William Schuh from the Board of Social Services, which indicated concern Monday after being informed that a welfare official had accepted the boat for the group foster home.

The 15-foot boat was donated to the home by an Appleton resident. Ray F. Kaskey, deputy director of the Outagamie County Department of Social Services, said he did not know one of his supervisors had approved the action until it was too late. Kaskey agreed he should have been consulted.

Kaskey brought the matter to the board in an attempt to determine who should accept legal responsibility for the boat and its upkeep. He said the responsibility would lie with the county, through the welfare department which has a voice in the operation of the group home, or with the group home owners.

Board members said the boat was placed on supervision to the Outagamie County Department of Social Services until his 18th birthday Monday after being found delinquent in Juvenile Court.

The youth pleaded guilty to a burglary charge and two counts of theft stemming from incidents March 13 at the Shiocton Speedway.

According to the petition, the boy and three others broke into a car at the speedway and took several stereo tapes. He stole three cartons of cigarettes and two cases of beer from the shelter house at the speedway. A sheriff's investigator said the tapes have not been recovered.

C. Bernard Dillett, acting Juvenile Court judge, directed the boy to make restitution of $7.42. The youth had been in Juvenile Court once before and was on supervision to the county department when the latest offenses occurred.

The three other juveniles re-tacted but interested in buying side in Waupaca County and their cases will be handled in Juvenile Court there.

Menominees Likely To Reject U.S. Offer For Wolf River Land

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The outlook for early consent by Menominee Enterprises Inc., to the sale of Wolf River frontage to the National Park Service as part of the federal wilderness river preservation plan is not encouraging, state officials were told here.

The report came from Bruce Miller of the federal agency, who disclosed that the service has submitted a value appraisal report on the land along 25 miles of the stream within the boundaries of the former Menominee Indian reservation.

The federal department also submitted a purchase contract, but officers of the Menominee corporations have expressed disappointment about the valuations shown in the study, he acknowledged.

Miller reported to state officers who constitute the Natural Resources Committee of State Agencies.

He said that the best that can be expected now is that the corporation will refer the issue to its Menominee stockholders in a referendum vote, but added:

He said reports from the Menominee County indicated that its residents, almost all of whom are Menominees and shareholders in the corporation that own most of the land there, indicated that most of them expected a valuation report and a federal purchase price three to four times the size of the value set by the federal appraisers.

Miller did not mention the appraisal value as he made his report to the state officials, representing a state government that has encouraged a plan for sale of river front lands as a means of buttressing the financial resources of the Indian community and of assuring preservation in perpetuity of their scenic value.

The hope that federal acquisition would ultimately be authorized was the reason given by the state legislature four years ago when it approved substantial annual payments of state funds to the Menominee corporation in return for public access rights to the river front within Menominee County.

Financing Schedule To Delay Sanguine

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The United States Navy's schedule for financing planning Project Sanguine in northern Wisconsin has been so seriously delayed that there will be no construction for at least another year, estimates before January of even under the most favorable circumstances.

That was the report of Dean Robert M. Bock of the University of Wisconsin graduate school, chairman of a special committee that has acted as the state's watchdog for several years since the Navy made known its desire to build a giant electronic grid underground in upper Wisconsin to provide a worldwide naval communications system.

State officials and leaders of environmentalist groups have regarded the tentative plan with outright opposition or strong doubt. The Bock committee was created to guide state government policymakers in their relations with the Pentagon on the proposed project.

Bock reported Monday to the Natural Resources Council of State Agencies, which has been decidedly cool toward the Navy plan because possible damage to the environment, including wildlife, has been so seriously delayed.

Bock said the Navy cannot validate all designs and cost estimates before January of 1973 because of the "slipped schedule."

The university officer said that Navy conferences with a "Wisconsin committee for environmental information" have shown major disagreements on the validity of the system against possible alternative systems.

Bock told the state department heads that a major gain from the long consultations with Navy technicians about the project has been an increased popular awareness that Sanguine does not embody a miraculous new communications technique.

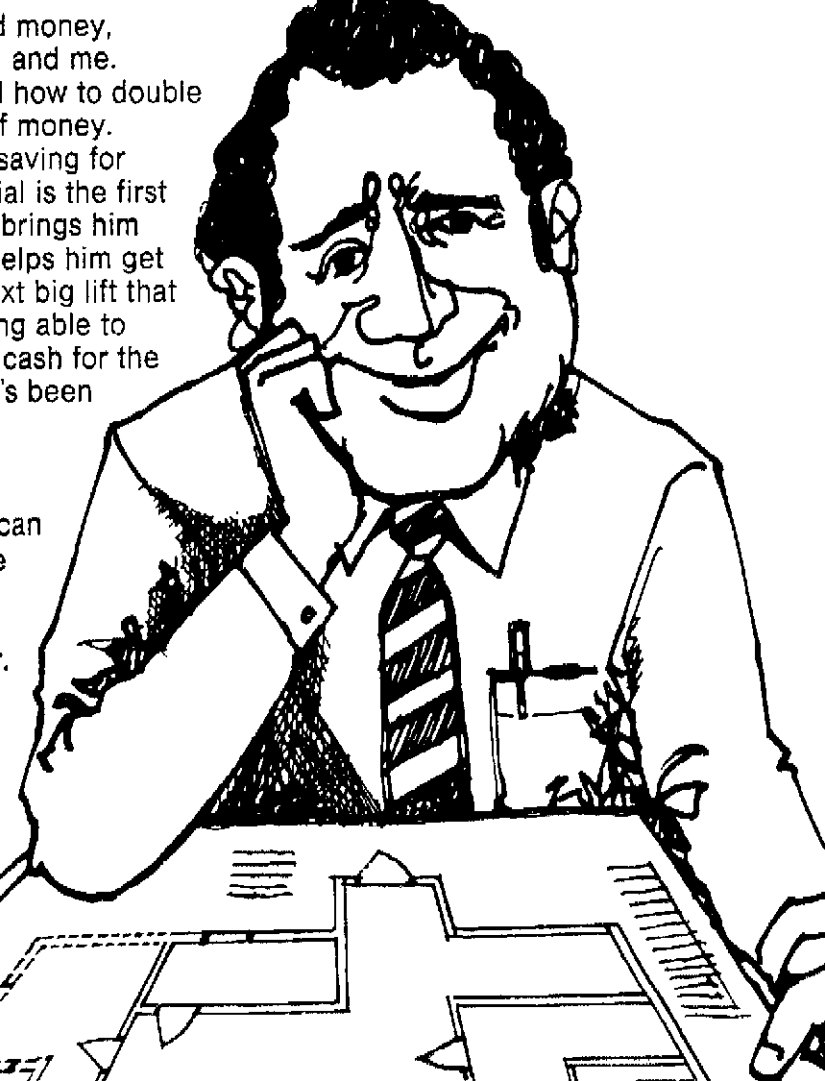

"Sanguine is a one way, slow signal sender. It is in no way a replacement for or comparable to conventional radio, telegraph or telephone-type communication," he summarized.

Mental Hospital Committal Argued

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A sharp division of opinion over the definition of mental incapacity and the procedures for committing persons to mental health treatment facilities was demonstrated Monday to the Joint Finance Committee.

Dr. Leonard Ganzer, head of the mental hygiene division of the state Department of Health and Social Services, supported a bill and most aspects of a substitute amendment that would make voluntary commitment of persons to mental hospitals easier and involuntary commitment more difficult.

Judge Charles L. Larson of Port Washington, representing the Board of County Judges' Mental Hygiene Committee, opposed the revision in the mental health law.

The basic bill before the committee that must consider its implications for state finance was prepared by an interim committee of the legislative council Ganzer served on the committee.

The substitute that adds a number of steps to make involuntary commitment of persons to mental hospitals quite difficult was introduced in the Senate by Sen. James Devitt, R-Greenfield, chairman of the Health and Social Services Committee.

Judges Revise

The judges group in 1969 helped prepare a revision to the mental health law that was lost in the course of that session.

Provisions of the bill and substitute that are likely to be pulled together in another version of the bill include sections that:

- Limit involuntary commitment to persons whose condition creates "a clear and present danger of substantial bodily harm to himself or others or their property."
- Would permit a person to voluntarily admit himself to a mental hospital because of alcoholism, drug abuse or mental illness informally before his application is complete.
- Require the appointment of a guardian ad litem to represent a person in an involuntary commitment proceeding.
- Limits emergency apprehension and detention to 24 hours before a hearing must be held.
- Requires two separate physicians' opinions on the person's condition.
- Limits parents signing voluntary commitment papers to those representing youngsters under 14.
- Eliminates mental infirmity, as a result of old age as a reason for involuntary commitment; and
- Requires a two-part hearing and extra legal steps for involuntary commitment.

Ganzer said that most of the changes in making involuntary commitments more legally restrictive are "workable." "They are more formidable. They voluntarily commit themselves in the process of drafting the bill or amendment as they were to institute involuntary when the 1969 version was prepared. He opposed elimination of present provision that lets partition of mental infirmity as a reason for commitment. He said the committee act before supporting one referred to that provision of present law as antiquated.

The one proposal Ganzer took issue with was the amendment judges' committee was disturbed by the provision that adolescents either

Billboard Ban Urged for State

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Chief state officers charged with administration of state environmental protection and regulation laws voted unanimously Monday to appeal to the legislature for enactment of some form of billboard control on the major highways of the state.

The action came from the Natural Resources Council of State Agencies, consisting of ranking state department administrators and headed by the governor, Deputy Director John Beale of the department presided in the absence of Gov. Patrick J. Lucey who was in Washington testifying about the need of the state for better land use programs that could be encouraged through federal legislation.

The NRCSA has backed billboard controls in other years, and its members noted that legislatures in the past have appeared to be indifferent because of the hostile resistance owners of the signs, as that such proposals inspire.

The new action came when William Buglass of the State Highway Division reported that doubts that such a program would be acceptable in the U.S. Department of Transportation appeared to be in Wisconsin legislature because of the cost and other factors.

Such a simple prohibition law has been in effect under action of the legislature on the Wisconsin standards set in the sin segments of the new Interstate Highway Beautification Act of 1969.

The highway officer said that problem was indicated when if Transportation Secretary Volpe makes good his threat to least 44,000 commercial billboards, this boards and signs on other state would forfeit more than $6 million a year in federal money.

Council discussions indicated that a "minimum" state bill-board law would simply outlaw removal work when compensation is provided, but allocations of the state of money have not been made.

Recently some funding was suggested, would be a available to each state are not system of compensation of the yet known.

Governor Names She's Hooked and Pregnant in New York Area Teacher To Commission Center's Staff Answers Cries for Help

Mrs. Robert Dalton, third grade teacher at Emmeline Cook School, Oshkosh, has been named by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey to serve on the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women.

The commission will concern itself with such issues as revision of state labor standards, extension and enforcement of equal opportunity provisions in public and private employment; improvement of education and counseling of girls and women from all academic, economic and age categories; modernization of family planning legislation; assurance of a humane level of living for all women and their families, and the encouragement of women in numbers into public office and other significant decision-making circles.

In making the appointment, Gov. Lucey said, "More than at any previous time in our nation's history, we are today aware of the special problems which women encounter as they attempt to develop and fulfill their personal aspirations. It would indeed be an achievement of significance if, during the next few years, we were able to rectify many individual discriminations which restrict or encumber the lives of women."

Chairing the commission will be Dr. Kathryn Clarenbach.

Mrs. Dalton is the wife of Robert Dalton, Oshkosh High School mathematics teacher.

Mrs. Jay Van Thiel

At one time or another every woman has thought about what it would be like to be pregnant and unmarried. Think about it again, but this time add another complication to your dilemma: drug addiction.

Think about an unborn baby whose mother is a prostitute unable to remember the father's name—if she ever knew it. This is a baby who will be born a drug addict, because of the heroin in the mother's body. Think also of the mother, too busy worrying about her next bag of heroin to even consider nourishment for her infant.

Now that you've thought about it and have assured yourself that it can never happen to you, ask yourself where you would go for help if you were in this dreadful situation. There are plenty of agencies, public and private, that deal with unwed mothers-to-be, but few of them handle drug addicts. Odyssey House is one of the exceptions.

Nevertheless, you would eventually find a place that would take you in and agree to deliver your baby. The staff might suggest of course, that you give it up for adoption due to your unfortunate circumstances. And the baby already addicted to heroin would be detoxified through medication and hope.

fully would become a healthy individual.

But whether or not being a heroin addict at birth will have a lasting effect on the baby is a question which no medical authority can reassure the mother about before the birth. How would you, as a mother-to-be deal, with this anxiety?

If you go by statistics, your future is fairly predictable. You'll continue your life of drug addiction, supporting your habit through prostitution or some degrading and illegal life style. Sooner or later you'll probably be arrested or die of an overdose.

This is why the Odyssey House induction center on New York's East 22nd Street keeps its doors open to pregnant female addicts at all times. The Odyssey medical staff of doctors and nurses is trained to look after the pregnant mother's medical needs, and can assure her the safest delivery possible.

But this is the easy part. Doctors know how to deliver babies. They do it every day, rarely doubting that things will go smoothly and easily. Treating the mother's addiction, however, is a different story. Any doctor who has ever treated addiction knows this. He realizes that rehabilitating an addict is always difficult. This issue of pregnancy complicates the situation tremendously. The Odyssey House method is designed for people whose situations are almost hopeless. It is based on motivation. Hopelessness does not prevent the staff and community from trying. It only deepens their commitment to help. Motivation comes in various forms.

Hope vs Motivation

In most cases it is the threat of jail, family pressures, court pressure, or some other circumstance which makes Odyssey a desirable alternative. Few addicts, if any, have a genuine desire to help themselves in the beginning of their treatment.

A raw addict is usually apathetic towards his well-being and impelled to satisfy only his immediate desires. Odyssey's therapy tries to change all that.

When he treats the pregnant female addict, the Odyssey doctor must remember that her sexual identity has been damaged many times, not only by the physical disfigurement of the needle, but by a lifestyle which is totally removed from society's concept of femininity.

The girl's pregnancy then becomes her motivation. The professionals who treat her confront her with this whenever she feels overcome by apathy or hopelessness.

Fortunately, nature is on the side of the doctors. If the side of the doctors. If the girl's instinct to protect her offspring can be made to overrule her desire to escape reality, she stands a good chance of having a healthy, wanted baby.

From Here, Where?

As a resident in the program, the mother-to-be is treated no differently than the other patients, except of course, for the medical attention she needs. Her diet is dictated by the house physician who also decides her job function in the house. She attends the same group therapy sessions as the other residents. She takes an active part in the functioning of the therapeutic community and she is encouraged to feel free

Couple's Gift 'Symbolic'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he has much the same hopes for the world as for his daughter Tricia and future son-in-law Edward Cox.

For the bridal couple: "One, the chance to live their own lives. And two, the chance to know the world as I had a chance to know it—to visit all the countries."

He told a diplomatic reception for the couple last week he hopes in the future "this will truly be an open world."

"What a wonderful thing it is for our children and your children to know each other," Nixon told representatives of 107 nations.

"This is what this gift symbolizes," he said of a huge baroque silver punch bowl with 12 matching cups and tray presented to the couple.

"All the world is here," he said. "This is the gift of the world."

Dropping in on the gathering for 15 minutes, the President laughingly commented that "the young people will get through the wedding—I don't know whether I will or not."

It was the first time Eddie and Tricia appeared together at an official gathering since their engagement was announced March 16 and they were admittedly excited about their White House wedding June 12.

With hostess Mrs. William P. Rogers, wife of the secretary of state, Tricia and Eddie spent 45 minutes receiving the diplomatic corps in the garden of Anderson House, a historic mansion on Embassy Row.

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The feminists are in a sweat again. This time over the image of women depicted in children's books. The Daddys get to fix things, play ball, and go to the office, while the most positive thing the Mommy does is push cookies.

A group called the Feminist Collective on Children's Media is getting together a bibliography of children's books to be called "Little Miss Muffet Fights Back." (Or as one feminist said, "It's about time Miss Muffet defended her tuffet.")

I, too, have a quarrel with children's books, but for a different reason. Why didn't some clown tell me they were fiction?

For the first several years of motherhood, I went through life saying, "Look, look, Teddy, you have pulled the 1 1/2 ton birdbath over on Mommy's leg. Run, run, dear, and fetch Daddy. Daddy wears a tie. He works in an office. He is a nuclear physicist. (Never mind looking it up in the glossary, you Timmie.) Tell him to hurry home before I bleed, bleed, bleed to death." I felt like a fool.

Then one day my kids said, "Real people don't really talk in triplicate, Mom."

"Also," they added, "if you throw a stick at Spot, she'll bite you sometimes. And most Daddys don't wear suits. And most Mommys make slice-n-bake cookies and our nun wears loafers because she has a planter's wart on her foot and our milkman uses four letter words when the bottle breaks."

"What are you saying?" I gasped.

"We got another flash for you. The book in the school library on Joe Namath has been edited for sixth graders. Tom Sawyer was really an underachiever, and Alice in Wonderland had a bad trip."

"Then you mean to tell me you don't buy everything you read in children's books?"

"Not since we saw the Mommy dressed at breakfast with a smile on her face."

I suppose some day soon I will pick up a children's book and confront realism. Mommy will be an unemployed advertising executive, her 1 1/4 planned children will be in a day nursery, her dog, Spot, will sulk under the porch because in the name of ecology she was sprayed, Daddy (in a unisexual society) will skate in the roller derby on TV and the entire family will gather on weekends to protest the war, pollution, racial inequality, ethnic slander and male chauvinism.

I liked it better when the books lied to me

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am all for human rights, equality and all that jazz, but the queers are taking over the world and I resent it. This is what happened to my sister last week:

Wilma and her fiancé went to the Court House to take out a marriage license yesterday. The county clerk looked at her in a very odd way. She couldn't understand what was wrong. Finally he said, "Are you sure you're a female?" My sister almost fell over dead. Her fiancé was ready to invite the guy outside. She replied, "What in the world are you driving at?" The clerk said, "Last week we had two gay couples in here trying to get marriage licenses. Lord knows how many of those characters have fooled us."

Wilma got so mad she was ready to take off her clothes right then and there. Finally the clerk said, "O.K., but I hope you see my problem." My sister and her fiancé got their license but it sure ruined their day. What do you think about this, Ann Landers? How can decent people be protected against such insults? — Another California Earthquake

Landers should take the marriage applicants word for it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son is 29 years old and lives with me. His father died 10 years ago and I need the room and board money, but I'm beginning to wonder if it's worth it.

Nickey makes $132 a week takehome pay. He gives me $80 a month. He gets good breakfasts and big dinners. I do his laundry (shirts by hand) and I keep his suits pressed. He uses the telephone, plenty of hot water, gas, lights, and has a TV in his own room. Nearly every day he asks me to buy him shaving cream, or blades, mouthwash, toothpaste, a bottle of aspirin, adhesive tape, hair cream or after-shave — it's always something. He expects all this for his $80 a month.

When he has company I am supposed to prepare the refreshments and serve them as if I was a maid. Sometimes he doesn't even introduce me.

When Nick gets mad he doesn't talk for three days at a time. I'd like your advice on whether I should ask him to leave. The heartache isn't worth the extra dollars. — New Jersey Troubles

Dear N.J.: Your advice is in the last sentence. I couldn't have said it better myself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Call my letter "The Confession of a Foolish Mother" — but please print it for other mothers who don't know any better.

Our 17-year-old daughter became pregnant by a 19-year-old boy. Elsie was crazy over Ray and I now believe she got pregnant on purpose. Ray didn't want to get married but I practically put a gun to his head. It is one year later and they are both miserable. Ray is never home and Elsie is a nervous wreck. He is a rotten husband and has no interest in their little girl. Eventually, Ray will leave for good and I'm beginning to think the sooner the better. I hold myself responsible for this mess. Please tell mothers everywhere that a forced marriage is always a mistake. — Wish I Hadn't

Dear Wish: A word from someone who has been there is worth heeding. Thanks for writing.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Unfinished Projects One Of Wife's Eccentricities

Needs of the whole human family can be met through individual spiritual recognition of divine power, Mrs. Lenore D. Hanks, the new chairman of The Christian Science Board of Directors, said at the denomination's annual meeting in Boston Monday.

"It is not too late," Mrs. Hanks told the gathering for the individual to learn about the spiritual resources which enable mankind to repair the ecology, reverse the population explosion, and arrest drug abuse, war, crime, injustice, apathy and greed.

"Peoples everywhere," she said, "need to get the feel of irresistible divine power, of divine activity going on all over the world. We must never allow human action to overshadow the recognition of divine action."

The results of recognizing the power and presence of God are shared at Wednesday evening testimony meetings held in some 66 branches of the denomination in Wisconsin according to Robert M. Carnes of Milwaukee, the Committee on Publication for Wisconsin.

"There is no substitute for firsthand religious experience," Mr. Carnes said, in commenting on the call of the Boston meeting for increased spiritual activity.

Ways for helping mankind were emphasized throughout the message of the board of directors.

"When we open our thought," Mrs. Hanks said, "to this great fact—that God is always expressing Himself in man—we will find not only ourselves liberated, but our world delivered from the threats that press upon it."

Tremendous possibilities await the individual and the society which see man as the very expression of God's being because this divine being is the only source of saving, healing activity.

"But such understanding must be communicated. Here's where our institutions come in. And when we realize that every right activity is initiated by God, church efforts will rise to the greatness of our opportunities."

Motives and standards for helping humanity must be relevant, Mrs. Hanks brought out.

"It will never do to be behind the times in things most essential which proceed from the standard of right that regulates human destiny," she said, quoting from one of the writings of Mary Baker Eddy, who discovered and founded Christian Science.

"So," she continued, "there's always the necessity to strengthen our institutions, to examine our programs and keep them relevant not merely to the assertive needs of today and tomorrow but to humanity's high destiny—which is not that of a condemned race on a poisoned planet."

"We need to be radical activists—spiritual activists," she said. "We need to take the initiative in identifying and focusing on what are the real issues."

Of special interest at the meeting was information about a new training program initiated and funded by The Mother Church "to employ minority unskilled workers leading to union apprenticeship." The program, which was referred to as unique, has been in force for a year and a half and is considered a model for the Boston area.

The new chairman of the denomination's board of directors is a native of Portland, Oregon and a graduate of the University of Oregon. Mrs. Hanks, who now lives in Boston, is a Christian Science teacher and practitioner. Prior to becoming a director in 1968, she traveled widely as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship with special interest in lectures at colleges and universities.

Mothers Choose Designer Dresses For Wedding

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dresses the mothers of the bride and groom will wear at the White House wedding Saturday were announced Monday.

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, mother of Tricia, will wear a long-sleeved dress of white crepe, overlaid with white organdy, covered with pastel-colored flowers, and designed by Priscilla Kidder of Boston, who is doing all the bridal gowns.

Mrs. Howard E. Cox, mother of bridegroom Edward F. Cox, has picked a single button coat dress of silk water color print of floral sprigs in shades of blue on white, with a portrait collar. It was designed by Betty Kirk for B. L. Griffith of New York.

Mrs. Nixon's dress, which has a flared circular skirt and V-neckline softened with petaling, will be worn in her usual length, just below the knee. It is in delicate tones of rose, Miss Mimosa, and delphinium, the White House said. With it the First Lady will wear a pink T-strap sandal designed by Beth Levine of Herbert Levine shoes in New York, and short white kid gloves.

The White House also announced today that walkways, foyers and entrance ways will be decorated for the wedding with potted trees and there will be numerous planter boxes filled with white geraniums, petunias and ivy.

County Proposes Residency Rule

A proposal has been made to require all future Outagamie County employees to live in the county as a condition of their employment.

The recommendation was endorsed Monday night by the county board's rules and legislative committee, and is expected to go to the full board tonight.

Under the proposal, new employees would have six months after they started work to move into the county. The rule, if adopted, would not affect any present employees who does not now live in the county.

Committee members agreed on the proposal on the basis that no present employees would be affected. County Executive Alvin Woehler said only a few employees now live out of the county.

Extra Work

Supv. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, said the county should try to avoid another situation like that of former welfare director Alfred Eggert who lived in Shawano County the entire time he was employed by the county.

In other action, the committee decided that a committee chairman should not expect extra compensation for preparing a meeting agenda.

The action resulted in denying Supv. Charles Wussow, the rules committee chairman, an additional half-day's pay for preparing the agenda for Monday night's meeting.

Wussow had asked for the additional pay, saying he had spent the afternoon at the courthouse going through bills before the state legislature to prepare for the meeting.

Supv. G. Allen Bubolz and

Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt said committee chairmen had to expect doing extra work without compensation as part of the prestige of the job.

Supv. Paul Huseby, however, said a committee chairman should be paid for the time he puts in.

Wussow, who previously has advocated an annual salary for supervisors to replace the per diem arrangement, said the debate was the best argument he has heard for an annual salary.

State Attempts To Safeguard The Consumer

Approaches Still Fall Behind New Production Methods

Total approaches to safeguard consumers have failed to keep pace with new methods of producing and marketing goods.

The result, according to Mrs. Camille Haney, consumer affairs coordinator for the state Office of Consumer Protection, is "frustration in the machine age — the feeling that somehow you haven't gotten your money's worth."

Mrs. Haney spoke to the Appleton Lions Club Monday afternoon. She said the old marketplace saying, "let the buyer beware," was adequate in former days when buyer and seller dealt with each other face to face and negotiated purchases. Today the concept is still too much in force, she said, and "as archaic as the cracker barrel."

Helpless Feeling

Millions of dollars have been bilked from Wisconsin residents by unscrupulous salesmen, schemes, referral sales rackets, pyramid distributorship schemes, referral sales rackets and other merchandising gimmicks, she said. Indifferent stores, computer billing errors and "tasteless and condescending advertising" compound the consumer's feeling of helplessness.

Wisconsin is a frontrunner in trying to remedy consumer problems, she said. Recent legislation gives her Justice Department office the power to issue court injunctions against individuals or firms involved in fraudulent advertising or marketing practices. The Justice Department also can order sellers to make restitution on consumer complaints.

During the past year, she said, companies have returned over $100,000 to consumers in Wisconsin as a result of Consumer Protection's mediation and legal action.

Stopped Before Start

"Many more millions," she speculated, have been saved by thwarting fraudulent schemes before they got started. The office works with local district attorneys and other state agencies, such as the Public Service Commission, and the motor vehicle division of the Department of Transportation. Commercial abuses recorded by agencies are fed into the office's computer data bank for use as evidence in changing trade regulations and enacting new legislation.

She emphasized that her office is not a complaint adjustment agency, but a protective service for state consumers as a whole. Every individual complaint, however, is checked out to determine definite "patterns" of commercial abuse.

But Consumer Protection is hampered, she said, by a lack of resources — its two lawyers now are deciding priorities on 20 pending cases — and by the absence of consumer protection procedures on the local level.

Total approaches to the problem only will be effective, she concluded, if legal measures are matched by consumer education in Wisconsin schools, intelligent credit purchases by consumers, and by buyers speaking out against "the white collar crime."

Three-Year-Old Susie Reynolds does her part to clean up the environment by depositing cans at the collection point at the Food King Super Market, 1933 N. Richmond St. The many barrels of cans will be taken to National Can Corp. in De Pere for recycling when transportation is arranged. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Reynolds, 624 E. Greenfield, remembered to rinse out the cans and remove the labels before she brought them to the city's only can collection location. (Post-Crescent Photo)

At Kimberly Mill

K-C Now Using Boiler

KIMBERLY — A $1.1 million dollar investment in cleaner air began producing results here today with the lighting of a gas-to recognize a noticeable difference because of the reduction of stack emissions. Before installation of that gas-fired unit, said, improvements also had been made to three other coal-fired boilers which also cut down emissions.

"While we have not yet eliminated all smoke emissions because the coal-fired boilers still are in use," he said, "our long range plan is for conversion to gas as soon as additional amounts become available."

The new boiler is the major phase of an air pollution abatement program started at Kimberly two years ago, Mill Manager Frank Loppnow said. It replaces two 43-year-old coal fired boilers and reduces particulate emissions from the mill by an estimated 50 percent, he said.

Loppnow was joined by Leo Drissen of Wisconsin Gas Company service staff and Ralph Bowman, Fegles Power Service, installing contractors, at a brief ceremony marking the start up of the $1.1 million boiler.

Loppnow predicted that Kimberly homemakers will be able

Although the Kimberly mill row exceeds current state standards on air emissions, the decision to put in the new boiler was not prompted by state orders, Loppnow said. "It is part of a long range plan of the corporation for improvements at all Kimberly-Clark plants which goes back to 1963," he said.

In the Fox Valley, the company's Neenah Paper, Lakeview, Badger-Globe and Atlas plants now all are serviced by gas-fired boilers. Nine other Kimberly-Clark plants in the United States have gas-fired units but natural gas is not available in four other plant communities.

City Sees County as Only Hope to Stop Trailer Park

Extraterritorial Zoning Could be Too Late

BY CLIFF MILLER

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Rushing to head off a zoning change that would place a 260-unit mobile home park just outside the city, Mayor George Buckley today conceded that his only hope lies in the Outagamie County Board.

The mayor Monday pushed through the plans commission measure urging the City Council to claim its extraterritorial zoning authority within 3 miles of the city limits. The council receives the recommendation June 16.

The action is an opening step in freezing zoning outside the city limits, which, if accomplished soon enough, would prevent the county board from rezoning the mobile home park site.

But the resolution itself is without effect on zoning. An interim zoning ordinance would be required to invoke the freeze, and in the time it takes to put an ordinance into effect, the county board could approve the zoning change.

Ald. Donald Day (18th), representative of the ward adjacent to the Town of Grand Chute mobile home park site, told newsmen after the plans commission acted Monday that he feared the action may be too late.

Faith in County

Buckley today advised having faith in the county board.

"You have to place some faith in the county — not just the zoning committee itself, but that the members of the county board would not permit something like this to happen," he said.

By recognizing that time is too short for the city to act ahead of the County Board, Buckley contradicted an opinion he gave a citizen during the commission meeting. Asked whether the city has time to prevent the mobile home development, Buckley replied,

"Legally, I think we do have the time."

The rezoning request currently is before the board's zoning committee, which is scheduled to meet Thursday in a continuation of a hearing begun last week. If the committee recommends granting the change, the board could enact it at the July 13 board meeting.

If the council approves the plans commission recommendation at the next council meeting June 16, the earliest an ordinance proposal could be brought back for first publication would be July 7, with adoption July 21.

During the commission discussion, Buckley said the mobile home park "is the immediate problem," but noted that the city is without a voice in zoning matters on any of its borders. Pressed by Ald. Judith Winzenz (12th) to say whether he is proposing invoking zoning control only in Grand Chute or in all towns surrounding the city, the mayor seemed to favor taking control in all towns.

"We have nothing on our books at all to protect us" he said. "Not that they would, but Grand Chute could open a rendering plant right outside the Appleton city limits."

Commissioner Ralph Gertsch said he supports the measure because the city's comprehensive plan covers territory as far as U.S. 41 outside the city limits. If the city is without power to keep zoning in line with the plan, "we're wasting an awful lot of money," Gertsch said.

County Supv. Kurt Koletzke, Appleton member on the county zoning committee, told the commission, "I'm afraid — this is my guess — that it will be passed," referring to the zoning change. "I think you're a little late," he added.

Gertsch told the commission, "I don't care whether we start—"

Area Board Decision Delayed

Finances Worry Catholics

BY MALJA PENIKIS

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Finances — the ever-present problem for churches these days — once again overshadowed a program which would involve all of the Catholic parishes and educational endeavors in Appleton.

Delegates to the Appleton Catholic Area Board split on giving full approval to the idea of a permanent area school board with regulatory powers at the monthly meeting Monday.

In a somewhat surprising move, some of the representatives of the eight parishes, who had brought the question before their separate councils during the past month, cited financial problems as the primary reason for their misgivings.

Up to now, the issue had centered around the terms "regulatory board" and "study board."

Decision Delayed

This was to have been the meeting when the final "yes" or "no" votes were to be counted. However, because some of the parishes were sure, the decision was extended to July, when the body must act, according to the constitution.

In an effort to disseminate more information about the situation of Catholic education today to the parish boards, an educator-priest from Michigan will be invited to speak here in July. After his appearance, area board delegate will once more consult with their respective councils and give either final approval to the constitution or ring the death knell.

The two parishes endorsing the program fully at the meeting were St. Bernadette and St. Thomas More. The representative of the latter added, "we know about financial problems, but we feel we must look beyond this for the salvation of Catholic education." He also recommended that the board immediately begin looking for a coordinator so the program can get underway.

The other two parishes endorsing the plan, but with some changes, were St. Bernard and St. Pius.

Thomas O'Hearn, representing St. Pius, expressed grave concern about the "lack of support from Green Bay and for the need of a full-time person (coordinator) to do the work."

To this, Carl Sauter, president of the board, answered that he had met with the Most Rev. Aloysius Wycislo, bishop, on the question and that the prelate had reacted favorably to the board.

"I'm sure we will be getting support and help from him," Sauter said, adding that approval and endorsement also had come from the Rev. Mark Schommer, superintendent of schools for the diocese.

Other parishes that did not vote "no," but expressed misgivings were St. Joseph, St. Therese and Sacred Heart.

The Rev. James Putman, pastor of St. Mary, who has personally supports the plan informed delegates that his own council had not yet voted on it.

"As all of you, I have reservations about future financing, but in principle I support it."

"This is the hope for the future. Singly we die, but together perhaps we can salvage some of what we have," Putman said.

The Rev. Ephrem Hertel, pastor of St. Joseph, told the board that his council had expressed approval but also had reservations about the financial angle.

"We support Xavier, the Appleton Catholic Education Council and now this," he said. "I don't know that we can afford it."

The St. Therese representative said that his church council had proposed that the area board work under a year's agreement to see how the program works out, rather than under a binding constitution.

The question of how the money would be raised to pay expenses and the coordinator's salary was brought up by the representative of Sacred Heart, who told the delegates that "our

Ecology Education Program Planned for Youth in Region

A program is being formulated with the weighty goal of educating the youth of northeastern Wisconsin about the environment and the dangers to it.

The education will include disseminating information and field work, such as water testing, a watershed cleanup project and the construction of a trail, possibly a Braille trail, at the planned nature center north of Appleton.

Student Group

The program was conceived in the one-year-old Student Environmental Advisory Council (SEAC) an informal organization of students started by Northeastern.

Stephen Power, Northeastern biologist, and Appleton High School-East teachers, Michael Funk and John Main, will be ecology clubs. The clubs would be formed next fall.

Stephen Power, Northeastern biologist, and Appleton High School-East teachers, Michael Funk and John Main, will be preparing the teacher leaders and students for the ecology club program. Power was an adviser to SEAC, and Funk and Main are advisers to SEAC and the East ecology group.

Power said the program would have to be greatly scaled down if the grant isn't approved, or delayed slightly if the group has to re-apply after July 1. But he said he expected the money would be forthcoming this month.

The funds are available under the federal Environmental Education Act. Of the $2 million allotted, Wisconsin got $40,000 but applications are coming in at a plus-30 per day clip. Power said.

If the grant is approved, Power and the two teachers would be hired for the summer to train the teacher leaders and students, and then one full-time person would be hired for the remainder of the school year to coordinate activities.

"The big kickoff would come next September when the individual school ecology clubs would dual school ecology clubs would be formed by these teacher leaders," Power said. "We feel that even though it's just a small group — say 30 students

Teacher Negotiations Get Mediator

A Wisconsin State Employment Commission mediator is scheduled to meet next Tuesday with Appleton teacher and board of education negotiators to try to head off an impasse over two contract items.

The Appleton Education Association recently requested fact finding because of a stalemate over binding arbitration in non-renewal of contracts and grievance procedure. The items were carried over from last year's talks.

Under normal procedure, the WERC will seek to determine if there is a true impasse and whether it can be mediated before going to fact-finding — a time-consuming and expensive process for all concerned. More than one mediation session could be held.

The WERC said the initial session is slated for 4 p.m. next Tuesday in the board of education room at the Morgan administration building. A regularly scheduled negotiation session apparently was scheduled for that date.

The impasse on the two items hasn't stopped bargaining. Negotiators have met once since the petition was filed by the AEA.

Bargaining began in late May with the board and the teachers officially exchanging initial offers. The board's proposal was aimed at a total rewriting of the master contract while the teachers are seeking major fringe benefits and salary increases.

School Board To Examine Lunch Plan

NEENAH — The school board will reconsider whether or not it should expand the hot lunch program to all schools.

Supt. Donald Scott asked for the matter to be discussed again since he said he contacted Rep. William Steiger to get a feeling on what the federal government may do as far as providing hot lunch programs.

The trend is in favor of the hot lunch program Scott said that the state is also expected to make an aggressive effort to bring all schools into the program in the next couple years.

Neenah currently has the hot lunch program in eight schools. But seven elementary schools don't have it.

A representative of the State Department of Public Instruction appeared before the board in early May and suggested that the district expand the program to all schools or it may not receive any federal funding at all for the program it now has (about $50,000 annually).

The federal government would provide partial funding for expansion of the program to other schools.

The expense to the district initially would be about $10,000.

During its mid-May meeting, a couple of board members termed this "blackmail" and decided to do nothing as far as expanding the program.

The administration would apply as usual for the federal funds for the present program this summer. If federal funding was cut off, the board felt it could then decide what action to take.

However, Monday night, the board decided to take another look at this, after Scott explained about the federal and state leanings.

Shared Time Plan Downed

NEENAH — The Neenah school board, by a vote of 5-3, Andree Pertain, Mrs. Marjorie Buchanan and Paul Mueller, approved for this year, were C. education turned down the request, but then last year it approved it for the 1970-71 school year. Three or four St. Mary students were involved this year.

The school has estimated some 25 or 30 students may be interested in it next year.

Last August, four Neenah residents filed a suit against shared time, but it never came to court, and the matter has been dormant.

The Neenah board has received an opinion from its attorney, City Atty. Duane Phillips, who felt shared time would be unconstitutional. Whether it is constitutional or not has never really been tested in Wisconsin courts.

However, several schools in the state do have a type of shared time.

Menasha High School has had it for two years, and the board of education approved it for the 1971-72 year, but on a more limited scale. It approved participation in specific courses by St. Mary students as long as no new teachers or classes had to be scheduled because of the program.

Only students from Menasha attending St. Mary can take the courses at Menasha High, while those living in Neenah and attending St. Mary had been able this year to seek enrollment in the specific courses at Shattuck.

Shattuck Student Speeches Resound

BY DINAH WALTER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEENAH — The school board looked into the procedure for choosing graduation speakers and then analyzed reasons why the speeches were given as they were Thursday night.

The board members and include Rotary luncheon, Optimist Girl of the Month, National phone calls and comments from Merit Letter of Commendation, Neenah parents and citizens and recently a recipient of the upset over the content of the Wisconsin honor scholarship and speeches by Barbara Feters the King's daughter scholarship, and Gary Nash, the Shattuck Hochholzer said it is these High School student speakers.

type of speeches that makes Frank Hochholzer, board member, said he was very putting money into the education system. He said he felt concerned about what took place, and wanted to know something was "radically exactly the procedure involved wrong" when two students stand in choosing the speakers and the up and talk that way.

"It makes me shudder when I think it comes from Shattuck High," Hochholzer said.

Donald Shepard said that he agreed that what came out was "unfortunate," but he said he also agreed with the school's policy of not censoring the speeches.

A faculty advisor is assigned to the two winners, and this should or could have said "no, year that person was Richard you can't do this," Shepard Schwingel. During the meeting told the board.

Monday night, Scott read the He also pointed out that the instructions Schwingel had given student observers gave a stand-to the speakers and it said in ing ovation to a speech, and part: "You are representative of "this is more disturbing than the best your class has to offer, the fact that they gave the speeches they did," he said.

He later said that it would probably have taken more guts by a student to stay seated than to follow the crowd and stand up and applaud.

Hochholzer, however, said he felt that this reaction by the two student speakers could have come out of the teachers in school, and if this is so, he suggested a "shakeup of faculty."

Thursday night, both speakers criticized both society and the education system. They also took the older generation to task.

Both students are very active in school activities, both hope to go onto school, and Miss Feters has been listed on the "A" honor roll every semester.

Nash has been very active in athletics, and has been a member of the football team for the past three years. He also participated in track and was a member of the varsity band. He likes outdoor activities. His plans are to go to college and major in some phase of earth science.

Miss Feters hopes to eventually go into either psychology or the environmental sciences, students she has talked to their standing up in applause. And Scott said they should realize how it could affect their successors. People are upset, and can't be blamed for not wanting to spend money on education, when something like this happens.

Her honors and awards include Girl of the Month, National Merit Letter of Commendation, and recently a recipient of the Wisconsin honor scholarship.

Neenah Panel Ponders Street Assessments

Ellis proposed convinced that the present that the city just stop all street street assessment policy is not work and "wait for the property owners to come in and ask for the work to be done," Ellis predicted.

Monday's session was the second and it appears there will be several more before a new assessment policy and approach to the street construction program is finalized.

In addition to the new policy, members agreed to create a street construction program designed to update the city streets over the next five or seven years.

Wayne Bryan, public works director, since the early 1960's can tell the people a year in has proposed a construction advance that their street is timetable. MENASHA — The general port done for the APPA in a manager of the Menasha Electric and Water Utilities, which The nationwide study was undertaken early this year. Taylor said, noting that coal costs make up about 35 per cent of total operating costs for the utility.

In the release, Taylor said the average price for coal for electric general plants in December, 1970, was 60 per cent higher than 1969 average prices.

A public hearing on a requested water rate increase for the Menasha utilities was held in Madison on May 25. No specific rate increase was requested, but the commission did ask that it be enough to raise the net return on assets from the 1.74 per cent in 1970 to 5.5 per cent.

PSC Ruling

"I'm confident that the increase will be approved" by the PSC, Taylor said today. A PSC ruling is expected four to six weeks after the hearing.

The utilities will also ask for an electric rate increase. Taylor said they are still preparing data for the request, which should be made soon.

The report done for the APPA recommends:

A grand jury investigation of possible coal price fixing. Short of that, the report says, class action should be considered on behalf of affected municipal and cooperative utilities.

—Support FTC investigations of alleged withholding of natural gas from the market to encourage price increases.

—Seek suspension or repeal of federal law supporting state market pro-rationing, which the report says holds down the supply of crude oil.

—"Press for a congressional investigation of the international oil cartel."

—Encourage a suit by new England governors challenging the oil import program.

Public Works Director Robert Miller cast the lone vote against Buckley's measure. He explained afterward, "I'm no politician," so he doesn't have to worry about political ramifications of his vote. He said he fears the measure is being passed out of expediency to deal with a single matter, but will produce complications in the future.

He brought out through questioning that the city inspection office, which is under his jurisdiction, would have to process building permits within the three-mile limit once zoning controls are established by the city.

Planning Director Jack Hetu pointed out that in other communities, such measures "usually get hung up" on a provision that requires the city and town each to appoint three members to an extraterritorial zoning board, which must approve future zoning changes in the territory.

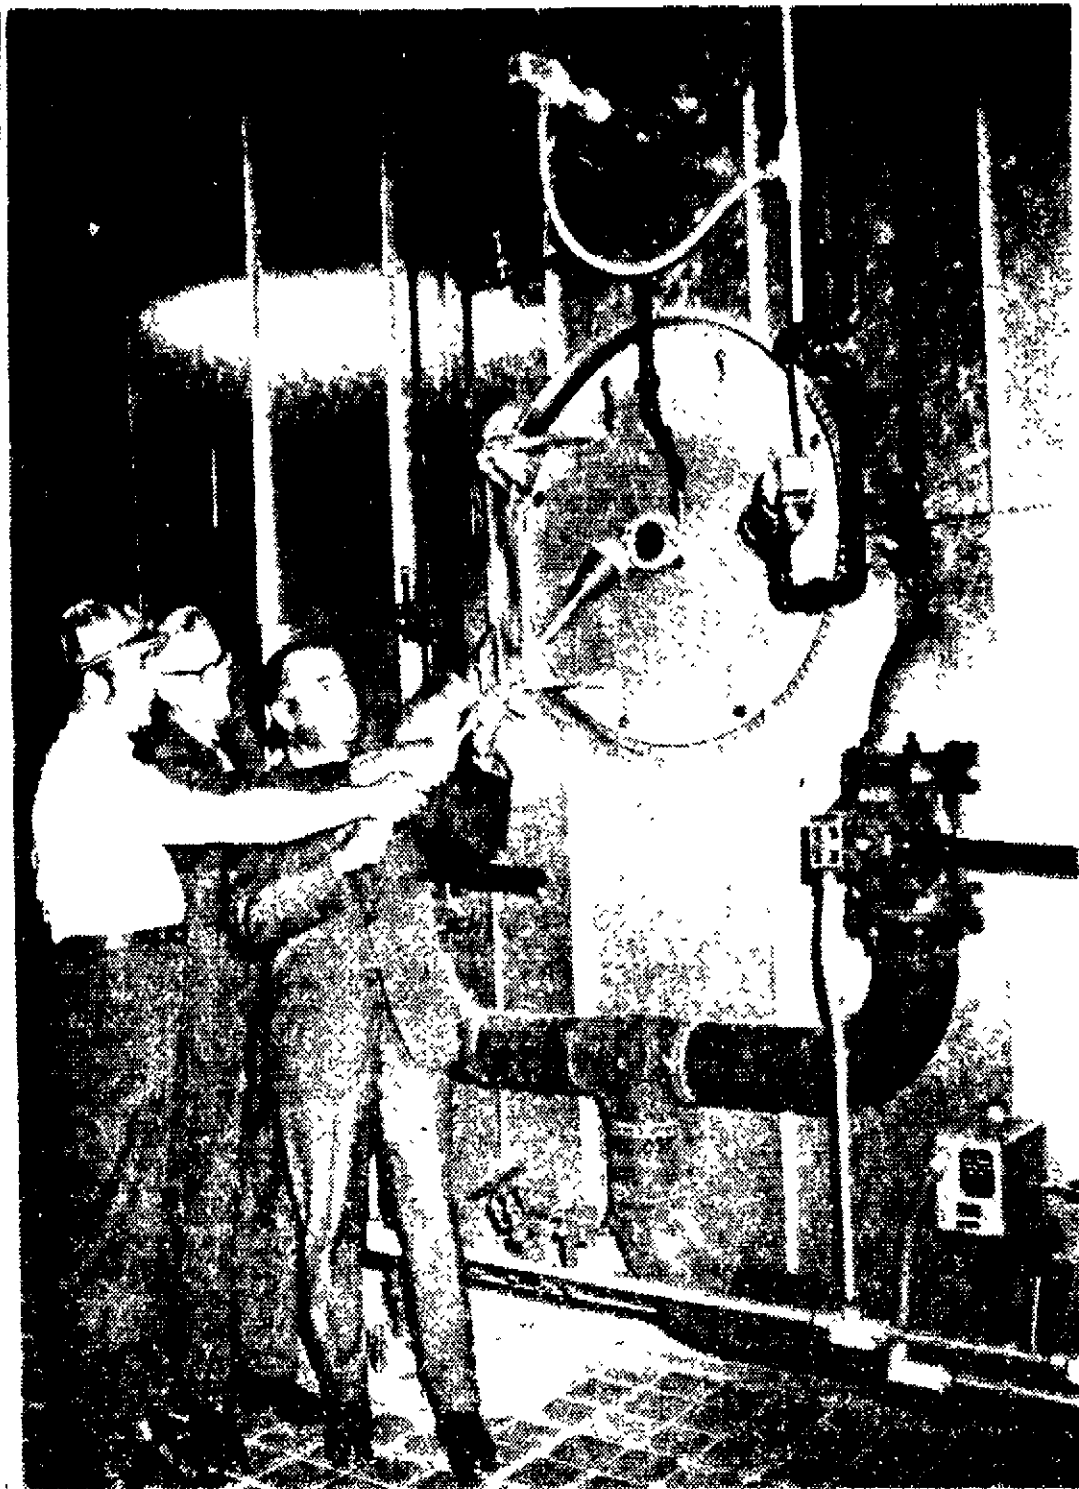

If both sides name their representatives on the commission, the city and town are equally represented and the probability of a deadlock is high.

school board is willing to accept the constitution with some major revisions."

Not Approved

He added that the boards which do accept the constitution have no power to raise money and proposed that a council of parish treasurers be formed to meet annually and allocate the funds proportionately.

His idea received little favor with the group who felt that such a body would not be close enough to the situation to know what is needed.

Sacred Heart has been the only parish which did not have official representation on the board and Monday its delegate told the board that he did not know what the final outcome would be because the Rev. Wilbert Staudenmaier, pastor, was currently conducting a poll of the parish to determine the overall feeling.

Staudenmaier has been opposed to the board and recently sent out a letter again expressing his full opposition.

Because of this, the delegates to the board seemed to feel that the final vote from there would be against joining the area board.

"We will not get 100 per cent participation but we don't have to be pessimistic. I think we can work it out by having the majority," said John Ensley, one of the authors of the constitution.

He also suggested that some of the leading Catholic universities be contacted for names of people who might be suitable for the spot of coordinator.

Earl H. Vande Walle, 38, route 2, Black Creek, was fined $100 and costs by Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer Monday, who found him guilty after trial on a charge of serving beer to minors. Vande Walle, the proprietor of The Palace Bar in the Town of Black Creek, had been charged by sheriff's investigators April 22.

Three youths, two 17 and one 15, testified during trial that Vande Walle served them beer on the April date. The investigation was started after one of the youths was involved in a traffic accident.

A 60-day commitment to Central State Hospital was ordered Monday for Robert W. Nordheim, 23, 2316 N. Linwood Ave., who changed his plea to guilty on a morals offense.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer found the man guilty. Final disposition in the case is pending the hospitalization.

Supreme Court Will Hear Groppi's Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court granted a hearing Monday to the Rev. James Groppi, the militant civil rights priest ordered to jail for contempt by the Wisconsin State Assembly in 1969.

Father Groppi was put behind bars Oct. 1, 1969, under a contempt citation by the assembly for his part in the forcible takeover of the floor for 10 hours Sept. 29, 1969 by welfare protesters.

The Roman Catholic priest served 10 days of the six-months sentence before U.S. District Court Judge James E. Doyle of Madison ordered him released. Last June 6, however, the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago upheld the imprisonment of Groppi by a 4-3 vote.

The case will be argued before the justices next term. Its legal significance lies mainly in Groppi's argument that legislatures cannot imprison a person under their contempt powers without a hearing and an opportunity to respond to the charge.

Circuit Court Decision

The Circuit Court majority said there was no indication that Groppi was not explicitly informed of the charges against him and the exact nature of his misconduct.

"The basic public need for inviolability of the legislative processes of our government dictates the availability of the possible of summary contempt punishment to the legislative branch," said the ruling, given by Judge Wilbur F. Pell Jr., of Chicago.

Groppi said his case was the first on record in which a legislative body imprisoned an individual without giving him an opportunity to respond as charged. "Our system of government is premised on the assumption that the individual must be protected against the exercise of absolute power by the government," said the appeal, prepared by six Milwaukee lawyers.

Contrary to System

"It is contrary to our system to allow a person to be imprisoned without giving him an opportunity to respond to the charges against him. Before any governmental body may act to injure an individual he is entitled to a minimal opportunity to be heard."

State Atty. Gen. Robert Warren took the decision in stride. "If the Supreme Court wants to review it, that's fine," Warren said. "The merits of the case as presented to the Circuit Court still pertain."

"This is a very important issue," Warren said. "It goes to the question of separation of powers of the branches of government and to the absolute necessity of the legislative branch to have powers to protect its own operation."

Groppi was jailed in 1969 under a contempt citation by the Assembly for his part in a forcible takeover of the floor for 10 hours by welfare protesters.

Cosmonauts Well

Salute Given New Life With Heightened Orbit

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviet cosmonauts steered their space laboratory salute into a higher orbit today to halt temporarily its gradual drop back to earth. Moscow radio reported.

The maneuver, effected by firing rockets aboard the craft, was needed in order to keep the station aloft for a longer period of time.

The 18-ton space station has been in earth orbit since April 19, and has been gradually drifting down into the upper reaches of the earth's atmosphere, where friction would disintegrate it.

Treaty Asked For Study, Use of Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government announced today that it is proposing a treaty governing exploration and use of the moon and has submitted a draft of the pact to the United Nations.

Tass said Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had asked Secretary-General U Thant to include the proposal on the agenda of the General Assembly meeting in the fall.

The draft, Tass reported, bars from the moon the "use of force and any other hostile actions, and also the use of the moon for committing such actions with regard to the earth."

"The draft treaty emphasizes," Tass said, "that the moon is used by all states, signatories to the treaty, exclusively for peaceful purposes. The setting up on the moon of military bases, structures and fortifications, the testing of any types of weapons and the holding of military exercises are banned."

The draft also provides that exploration and use of the moon shall be carried out by means "insuring the prevention of an unfavorable change in and pollution of the lunar environment." It adds that states signing the treaty will do all possible to preserve "the life and health of man on the moon."

The treaty also rules out all territorial claims to the moon, saying the surface and the interior of the moon "cannot be the property of states, international, intergovernmental and nongovernmental organizations, national organizations, juridical or physical persons."

"The signatory states must grant the right to persons in distress, who are on the moon and belong to the personnel of another signatory state, to take shelter in their stations, in their apparatuses, structures or equipment," the draft says.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A had estimated earlier this year. standard in most states. The 1970 net loss was about $425 million. Without this reduction in the labor force, the trustees said, the railroad would have to shut down by November or December.

"The economy is soft," said William H. Moore, president. "It's been soft ever since I came here (last Sept. 1.)"

The railroad wants the federal government to set aside crew-size laws in Ohio and Indiana. Many states have abandoned such "full crew" laws. But Ohio requires five-man crews and Indiana requires six-man crews.

The railroad had 91,995 employees in mid-May and was paying each an average of $12,500 per year.

The trustees said they also will ask the federal government to authorize the bankruptcy court overseeing reorganization of the railroad to set up machinery for final adjudication of crew size disputes, including question of retaining firemen on diesel engines, in any case under the Railway Labor Act which remains unresolved after 90 days.

Outlook Brighter

The trustees also said the outlook for the Penn Central is "brighter than it was when the Congress acted on the $100 million guaranteed loan" last year.

But, the trustees added: "The outcome depends in principal measure on what happens on one vital area, labor relations." The trustees said recovery of the railroad "is running slightly ahead" of the schedule they reported to Congress late last year when they told of the need for $350 million to $500 million. "There remains the all-important financing required for payroll, materials and supplies until the Penn Central can make it on its own. A total of $100 million is required, even assuming the labor relief mentioned above," they added.

Only a Rail Bridge spanning the Harlem River remains closed in this aerial view taken Monday after key men in New York City's municipal work force walked off the job without warning, locking open 29 bridges. Supervisors had opened seven of the bridges this morning. The city faces new problems with the strike of sewage treatment and incinerator employees. (AP Wirephoto)

New Method Is Effective in Dispersal of Airport Fog

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Science has found a way to disperse flight-delaying fog at airports but the method is so costly it is feasible only for busy airports, a NASA official reported today.

The procedure involves heating the air above the runway through a combustion-blower system which burns 28 pounds of kerosene a second, William A. McGowan of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said in a paper delivered at an air transportation conference.

"This might be achieved at a cost of $1,000 to $2,000 an hour, for efficient airport traffic operations," McGowan said. "The problem is that estimates of the initial cost of equipment needed to release this amount of energy in the required manner range from three to six million dollars."

"Such a system, therefore, can only be considered seriously for use at large airports with high traffic density," he added.

Evaporates Fog

He said scientific tests in the United States and France show that this heating method is effective in evaporating fog drops.

Experiments are under way in an attempt to lower the cost, and several large airports have indicated an interest in the system.

Tests are continuing on other means of ridding airports of fog. McGowan said some progress has been made, especially by the Air Force, in using helicopter downwash to mix dry air from above into the fog to produce subsaturated conditions. With sufficient mixing the fog drops evaporate and visibility improves.

"It appears to be applicable when fog depth is no more than 300 feet, and the effectiveness of this method might depend on the stage of the fog life cycle," the NASA official said. Depending on the amount of fog and area to be covered, the dispersal could be effected by two to four large helicopters, he added.

More research is needed into the potential problem of helicopter-generated turbulence within the cleared volume, he said.

Buffer Zone Fight Into It's 3rd Day

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and 2,000 South Vietnamese rangers continued a six-day-old drive about 100 miles west of Saigon with only scattered contact. The Saigon command said nine enemy were killed in a clash Monday 14 miles southwest of the Cambodian town of Kompung Trabek. No ranger casualties were reported.

Two Americans were killed and four wounded under a hail of rocket grenades and small-arms fire in a clash two miles southeast of the DMZ. The U.S. Command said one of the enemy was killed.

In a second fight, two miles away, South Vietnamese infantrymen backed by heavy air and artillery strikes reported 22 North Vietnamese killed and four weapons captured. The Saigon command said there were no South Vietnamese casualties.

North Vietnamese gunners again shelled Charlie 2, a U.S. base four miles southeast of the DMZ. It has been under attack sporadically since May 21. The U.S. Command said fewer than five rockets hit the base and caused no casualties or damage. Twenty-nine Americans were killed and 33 were wounded May 21 at Charlie 2 when a rocket smashed a bunker crowded with troops.

U.S. B52 bombers struck again along the DMZ in support of allied ground troops trying to block North Vietnamese infiltration.

The U.S. Command announced that enemy gunners shot down a small OH6 observation helicopter on the Vietnamese island of Phu Quoc, off the Cambodian coast, and one U.S. crewman was wounded. It was the 7,808th U.S. aircraft reported lost in the war.

J.I. Rodale Dies While Taping Show

NEW YORK (AP) — J. I. Rodale, who earned a fortune preaching the virtues of organic farming, died of a heart attack Monday night while taping the Dick Cavett television show. He was 72.

The multimillionaire farmer-publisher was outlining his beliefs when he slumped over.

A native of New York City, Rodale was a businessman before he began his career as a leading proponent of health foods grown organically—that is with animal or vegetable wastes, instead of chemicals, used as fertilizers.

Rodale

After moving to Emmaus, Pa., during the Depression, he started the 63-acre Rodale Experimental Organic Farm.

The farm, where Rodale and his wife Anna lived, also served as headquarters of a publishing empire that flourished with the surge in interest in organic foods in recent years.

Best known of his publications was "Organic Farming and Gardening," with a circulation of 700,000. It provided the bulk of Rodale's $9 million publishing revenues last year.

Called a "minister of secular fundamentalism," Rodale taught that "milk is bad and sugar is worse." But he occasionally indulged his taste for ice cream.

Motorist Has Proposal For Blinding Sunshine

(This feature is one of a weekly series bringing together questions on highway rules and regulations — how you can drive more safely, for yourself and others — as asked by Wisconsin motorists, together with authoritative answers as given by state officials of the agencies involved. It is presented as a public service to readers.)

A. Early every morning I drive east to work, and then return west in the late afternoon. Consequently, I am facing the sun on both occasions. I find it quite difficult to see approach ing cars which do not have their headlights on — they are in their own shadow.

It would be safer to have all cars keep their headlights on an hour after sunrise, and an hour before sundown. Alternatively, require headlights on at all times outside city limits, or at least on all two-lane highways. Is it possible to have such a ruling?

A. The highway headlight requirements are a part of state law, and require legislative action to change. A bill is now pending to change the hours to sunset and sunrise from the present half-hour after sunset to one half-hour before sunrise, as the definition of "hours of darkness." You might wish to follow this up with your legislators. Your representatives in the legislature are sensitive to public opinion, and your idea will get firm consideration.

Q. What should one do when overtaken by an emergency vehicle with red lights flashing?

A. I was brought up to believe that you should pull over onto the shoulder and stop.

A. Strictly speaking, the law requires that you pull over to the right on the shoulder. If and only if the overtaking emergency vehicle is blowing its siren. No mention is made in the statutes, of flashing red lights; the definition of "hours of darkness." You might wish to follow this up with your legisla-tioner operating on outside sounds at all can be heard. Practically, it is wiser to assume that the siren is blowing when the lights are flashing and to take the proper avoiding action. Do not lean on a legal distinction when there is a frank emergency.

Q. I put clear plastic on my driver's license. When I went to renew it they told me it was against the law to have your driver's license laminated. If its against the law why isn't it stated in the Driver's Manual? I looked and found nothing.

A. Laminating, or otherwise protecting your driver's license by some means which maintains its legibility is not against the law — I'm sure there was a misunderstanding when you heard that it was illegal. It is necessary to place notice of restriction on the license. In an instance, the Bureau of Driver Control will have to prepare and issue a duplicate license, bearing the restriction, and you will have to pay the fee or a duplicate, $2.00.

A. In a recent column, we noted that school bus drivers are under more stringent-than-usual requirements for testing and review of qualifications. We said that they have a complete test every other year, upon renewal of their licenses. What we should have added is that they also have to undergo a special examination the off years as well. In other words, school bus law — I'm sure there was a driver's qualifications to drive misunderstanding when you are tested every year. This further emphasizes our point.

Norman Anderson, the Democratic floor leader in the Senate and getting to work on a laden Assembly calendar, the Assembly, said a number of the Democratic-controlled amendments may be in- Assembly was to go to work to- introduced to upset the budget day on Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's timetable.

He discounted reports of 12 Joint Finance Committee re- Democratic dissidents getting viewed with minor alterations, ready to vote against the exist- ing proposal.

Legislators reported interest in forwarding the budget to the Democrats rule the Assembly Republican-controlled Senate 65-34, and a dozen dissidents wouldn't hurt the leadership's efforts to get Lucey's budget out of the house.

Anderson's party was given command of the Assembly in the November elections after Republicans raised the state sales tax. Lucey's budget program calls for income and corporate tax increases instead.

Legislators will be working day and night sessions to catch up on the backlog, Anderson said, hoping to avoid the last-minute crush which has charac- terized sessions in recent years.

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. At what rate should I pay Social Security tax on my maid's wages for the first quarter of 1973?

A. The combined rate for 1973 is 10.4 percent, 5.2 percent each for the employer and the employee.

The 5.2 per cent rate should be used when filing your Form 942, Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees, for the months of January, February, and March. The deadline for filing this return and paying the tax is May 3.

Q. Must I pay Social Security tax for the woman who occa- sionally cleans and babysits for me?

A. If you pay an employee $50 or more in cash wages in a calendar quarter for household services, you must pay social security tax for the employee. Household services include those performed by cooks, cleaning women, babysitters, and handymen.

The taxes apply to all cash wages paid during the quarter, regardless of when they were earned and whether they were paid by the day, the week, or the month. Food, lodging, and car-fare are not considered wages unless cash is given for these items.

Use Form 942, Employer's Quarterly Tax Return, for before departure but not earlier than 30 days. Don't wait until the last minute.

target area on the floor, outlining it with strings held in place at the corners by four books. At the center of the square a paper plate must be placed.

There can be only two players, one using red checkers, the other black checkers. They take turns, standing 10 feet from the square and tossing the checkers to land within the square or upon the books, but never in the paper plate. The game continues for 15 minutes. The player with the higher score at the end of that time is the winner.

A player scores three points for landing a checker within the square and he scores various points shown in the illustration above for landing on a book. If a player's checker lands in the plate, he loses all the points he has earned and must start over from scratch.

Bucs Erase Cub Lead

No Tonic Like Win, Says Danny Murtaugh

By JERRY LISKA
CHICAGO (AP) — For a man just emerged from a hospital, Manager Danny Murtaugh of the winging Pittsburgh Pirates is not exactly committed to peace and quiet.

But as long Willie Stargell is belting the ball out of the park and relief pitcher Dave Giusti is saving games, Murtaugh shouldn't have too much stress and strain.

Stargell increased his major league lead in homers to 19 and RBI's to 52 Monday as the Pirates erased a 6-3 deficit and whipped the Chicago Cubs 11-6 to keep up the blazing pace in the tight National League East race.

Giusti, a short relief specialist, hurled more than four innings of scoreless ball to record his 12th save and preserve a victory for another reliever, Bob Veale (2-0).

Mark Johnson Fans 17 as Shiocton Wins in 10th, 3-2

Navarino remained unbeaten and Oneida was handed its first loss in Dairyland Baseball League highlights last weekend.

Navarino recorded a 5-0 victory over Nichols as Jim Norder hurled a 2-hitter. Oneida was handed a 10-4 setback by Bonduel and in another league game, Shiocton shaded Hofa Park, 3-2 in 10 innings behind the 17 strikeout hurling of Mark Johnson.

Norder fanned five and walked just two in the 2-hit win for Navarino. Navarino is now 4-0 in the loop while Nichols has a 1-3 mark. Fran Schmelzel took the loss for Nichols.

Joe Buss had four hits in four trips and hit a home run in the seventh to lead Navarino. Arlin Pues also had a homer for the winners. Jack Dingledein had a 2-run double for Navarino.

Bonduel scored five runs in the first three innings and was never headed in the win over Oneida. Gene Berkahn was the winning pitcher and he fanned seven while giving up one walk.

He helped his own cause with a 3-run homer in the fifth inning. Steve Danforth took the loss and Danforth had a home run for Oneida in the ninth. Ron Rosenow also hit a 4-bagger for Bonduel.

Johnson whiffed 17 batters in the 10-inning win over Hofa Park and issued just three walks. Al Porter worked the last five innings for Hofa Park in relief of Don Dorn. The winning run scored in the 10th when Gary Johnson singled, took second on a sacrifice and crossed the plate on Jerry Smith's single.

Silent Courage Serves as Lasting Inspiration

Steinmark Met Challenge of Winning

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Southwest Sports Editor Denne H. Freeman covered Freddie Steinmark's moments of courage at the University of Texas, including Freddie's last game at Fayetteville in 1968, the Steinmark-inspired victory over Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl and the championship banquet where somehow Steinmark made it across stage on his crutches. Here's his reminiscences about the popular Texas safety.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
DALLAS, Tex., (AP) — Freddie Steinmark was a visitor in Houston's Astrodome last August and the play in the Texas High School Coaches All-Star game on the plastic rug below was ragged.

Father Fred Bomar, Steinmark's priest from Austin, asked if the boys were having big game jitters.

Father Fred Bomar, Steinmark's priest from Austin, asked if the boys were having big game jitters.

Texas' Steinmark just shook his head and said, "Can you imagine a game like this with nobody wanting to win?"

Winning meant a lot to the Wheatridge, Colo., product.

Anyone 5-feet-10, 166-pounds playing big time college football would understand.

Steinmark met that challenge head-up. He whipped it good — like 19-0 in the games he started at defensive safety.

In the last game, his leg was sore. But he thought it only a bruise and a 166-pounder who can't baby himself.

Texas nicked Arkansas 15-14 in the collegiate "Game of the Century" but six days later Steinmark lost the leg to cancer.

Less Than 6 Months

Even the most optimistic Texas officials figured the osteogenic sarcoma was so fast-spreading that Freddie had less than six months to live.

But incredibly 20 days later he was on the bench as Texas defeated Notre Dame for the collegiate national championship.

The Longhorn players said afterward that the sight of Freddie, erect on his crutches on the

Grid Injury Incidence High, But Deaths Lower Than Other Sports

By GORDON BEARD
BALTIMORE (AP) — "No team sport anywhere in the world has an incidence of injury more frequent than American football," says a Baltimore neurosurgeon.

But when comparing deaths on the gridiron with those in some other sports, Dr. Charles M. Henderson said, "football seems almost sedentary."

"The hazards of ordinary driving of an automobile," Henderson told members attending the National Athletic Trainers Association, "are nine times greater for young men from the 15 to 22 years of age group than participation in football."

At a clinic Monday on head injuries, Henderson said it has been estimated that the average high school football player has a 20 per cent chance of being injured during the season, with an 8 per cent chance that the injury would be serious.

As for deaths, Henderson said, a 1964 study showed a ratio of 3.9 for each 100,000 participants in football, or one for every three million man hours of exposure.

Other Sports

The death rate that year per 100,000 participants in other sports, he said, quoting an article from the Journal of the American Medical Association, was 16.7 for power boat racing, 120 for auto racing, 133.3 for horse racing and 278.6 for motorcycleing.

During the past 20 to 30 years, Henderson said, "the football helmet has evolved from a simple leather head

SPORT FANS! I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Here's a baseball oddity that makes you wonder how important it is for pitchers to warm up before a game . . . In one of the strangest games ever played, on June 23, 1917, the starting pitcher for the Red Sox walked the first batter, then argued with the umpire and was thrown out of the game . . . So, a new pitcher had to come in . . . A player named Ernie Shore came in to pitch with absolutely no warm up and retired 3 batters in the first inning and then every batter in the rest of the innings, pitching a perfect game! . . . That was one of only 12 perfect games pitched in all of major league history, and Shore did it without any of the usual pre-game warm up!

Has any big league baseball team ever been able to stay in first place EVERY DAY from opening day till the end of the season? . . . Only two teams in history accomplished this . . . They were the 1923 Giants and the 1927 Yankees.

Here's a golf fact that may surprise you . . . The all-time pro golf record for a player having the most consecutive rounds under 70 was not set in recent years as you might expect, but back in 1945 . . . It was set by Byron Nelson, who had the amazing total of 19 straight rounds under 70 in pro golf competition, and that record has never been broken.

I bet you didn't know . . . Don't forget Dad's Day, June 20. Surprise him with a Hart, Schaffner & Marx suit.

Stiff Fines for Brawls

Canadiens' Al McNeil Denies Report He Will Step Down as Coach

MONTREAL (AP) — The National Hockey League meetings continued with the annual intra-league draft today amid rumors that Al McNeil will be replaced as coach of Montreal's Stanley Cup champions.

McNeil denied a published report Monday that he has stepped down or intends to give up the coaching job to take another position in the Canadiens' organization.

But neither he nor General Manager Sam Pollock ruled out the possibility of a coaching change before the conclusion of the meetings.

In other opening day developments, the NHL governors approved stiffer penalties for brawling players and the minor league draft session was wrapped up quickly with the selection of three goalies and veteran forward Irv Spencer by the NHL clubs.

No Startling Moves

The intra-league draft was not expected to produce any startling moves, with each of the 14 NHL teams protecting 20 players, including two goaltenders, and first-year professionals exempt.

The drafting price is $40,000 per-player.

A Montreal newspaper reported that McNeil, who took over the Canadiens coaching job midway through last season, had advised Pollock he was resigning.

Goalies Picked

Goalies picked up for $30,000 apiece in the draft from American Hockey League and Western Hockey League teams were Gary Kurt, by California from Cleveland of the AHL; Andy Brown, by Detroit from Baltimore of the AHL, and Jim McLeod, by St. Louis from Portland of the WHL.

Vancouver drafted Spencer from the AHL's new Tidewater club.

Detroit goalie Roy Edwards, who said last week he was retiring because of recurring diziness, was acquired by Pittsburgh for the $30,000 waiver price.

The WHL, meanwhile, tagged Portland defenseman Connie Madigan with a 30-day suspension and 3-year probation for punching a referee during the league playoffs.

Police said the body of Gardner, 32, was found about 15 feet from the pitcher's mound at Bova Field, where he had his arm during military duty and broke an ankle during re-spring training in 1964. The Dodgers released him outright before the 1964 season.

A USC spokesman said Gardner was a physical education teacher at Dorsey High School in Los Angeles at the time of his death.

Thirty-five of the game's top names were exempt from all qualifying.

Bies, 135 on the 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course gave him a one-stroke margin over Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn.

sitting in his chair or even in his car. How contagious are they? — Mrs. C.B.

Scabies are due to a mite — yet, although there is work in it's the female that does the damage. She burrows into the skin and lays eggs, and when they hatch a vicious cycle is in progress. A red, itchy streak shows where the mites have burrowed.

The ailment is readily contagious, as the mites spread easily from person to person. Recent reports indicate that scabies is very much on the increase, along with body lice of various types, and if I knew anyone who had either and didn't get effective treatment, I'd stay away from him.

With scabies, exposed skin is mostly involved, especially the hands and arms, but the mites can burrow anywhere in the skin. The itching is worse at night.

Various sulphur preparations are used to be employed, but more recently a solution of gamma benzene hexachloride has proved very effective. It is known as "Kwell," but it requires a prescription, so you'll have to get it through your physician.

For scabies, the patient bathes thoroughly, applies the lotion, and leaves it on for 24 hours. Then another bath.

Clothes should be changed.

next 10 years and is worth considering.

Looker said he had talked with a number of people in his ward and a number of taxpayers in the area surrounding Schwenn's proposed complex and they indicated they did not want it. "The country club had done a lot of things for our community, opening it up to the various clubs and gatherings. If they want to open up their private club to the public, it is okay with me."

Mayor Edward Kramer said he had approached the matter genuinely undecided. "I weighed the country club versus progress and all of us will agree that it was one of the toughest decisions we've come up with. It is most unfortunate there are not two licenses to give away."

Legion Baseball Team Opens Play

CLINTONVILLE — The American Legion baseball team lost its opening game of the season Saturday night to Ashwaubenon, 12 to 7.

Winning pitcher was Tom Plag. Craig LeBeau, who pitched six innings, in a losing effort, gave up 11 hits, seven runs and had three strike outs. Dick Clausen pitched three innings, gave up four hits, five runs, and had six strike outs. Jim Kollbeek started pitching for Ashwaubenon, went for two innings and gave up five hits, six runs and had one strike out. Plag relieved him and went for the rest of the game, giving up three hits, one run and had four strike outs.

At the end of three innings, private club should not be in Clintonville led six to two, when the "bottom just dropped out."

Dave Dieck had a home run in the first with two men on. LeBeau had a home run in the third with two men on. Clausen had two hits, a double and a triple, and Rusty Ehlert had two hits.

State Attempts To Safeguard The Consumer

Approaches Still Fall Behind New Production Methods

Total approaches to safeguard consumers have failed to keep pace with new methods of producing and marketing goods.

The result, according to Mrs. Camille Haney, consumer affairs coordinator for the state Office of Consumer Protection, is "frustration in the machine age — the feeling that somehow you haven't gotten your money's worth."

Mrs. Haney spoke to the Appleton Lions Club Monday afternoon. She said the old marketplace saying, "let the buyer beware," was adequate in former days when buyer and seller dealt with each other face to face and negotiated purchases. Today the concept is still too much in force, she said, and "as archaic as the cracker barrel."

Helpless Feeling

Millions of dollars have been bilked from Wisconsin residents by unscrupulous salesmen, schemes, referral sales rackets, pyramid distributorship schemes, referral sales rackets and other merchandising gimmicks, she said. Indifferent stores, computer billing errors and "tasteless and condescending advertising" compound the consumer's feeling of helplessness.

Wisconsin is a frontrunner in trying to remedy consumer problems, she said. Recent legislation gives her Justice Department office the power to issue court injunctions against individuals or firms involved in fraudulent advertising or marketing practices. The Justice Department also can order sellers to make restitution on consumer complaints.

During the past year, she said, companies have returned over $100,000 to consumers in Wisconsin as a result of Consumer Protection's mediation and legal action.

Stopped Before Start

"Many more millions," she speculated, have been saved by thwarting fraudulent schemes before they got started. The office works with local district attorneys and other state agencies such as the Public Service Commission, and the motor vehicle division of the Department of Transportation. Commercial abuses recorded by agencies are fed into the office's computer data bank for use as evidence in changing trade regulations and enacting new legislation.

She emphasized that her office is not a complaint adjustment agency, but a protective service for state consumers as a whole. Every individual complaint, however, is checked out to determine definite "patterns" of commercial abuse.

But Consumer Protection is hampered, she said, by a lack of resources — its two lawyers now are deciding priorities on 20 pending cases — and by the absence of consumer protection procedures on the local level.

Total approaches to the problem only will be effective, she concluded, if legal measures are matched by consumer education in Wisconsin schools, intelligent credit purchases by consumers, and by buyers speaking out against "the white collar crime."

No Charge Against Mother In Fetus Death

No Evidence of Homicide in Case Authorities Say

OSHKOSH — Winnebago County Dist. Atty. William Carver said Monday that his office will not prosecute the mother of the fetus whose head was found in a sewage filter May 27.

Carver told reporters that, "There would be no prosecution of anyone at this time because there was no evidence of a homicide" and the act did not constitute concealment of a corpse because the fetus hadn't gained the status of a live human.

Carver said that if the male fetus had been one month older, the action of concealing the body would probably have resulted in prosecution.

The judgment that the fetus hadn't gained the status of a live human came after the pathologists' report which said the lungs, heart and head of the body weren't developed enough to sustain life outside the mother's womb.

The report also stated that there was evidence to indicate life was evidenced at least 24-36 hours before the abortion but there was no medical evidence to indicate an outside instrument caused the abortion.

Miscarriage

Carver and Coroner Duane Moore said the term "abortion" was misleading in this case because the layman's terminology would be miscarriage.

Moore added "it's perfectly possible this was just a natural abortion." Carver pointed out that the "unnatural part" was the disposition of the body by the mother.

He said that if additional evidence indicated there was a forced abortion, his office would investigate.

The pathologist's report also stated the head was separated from the body by an unknown instrument after being aborted, but that separation did not take place in the birth canal.

There were also two slashes on the body, according to Moore, who said they could have come from natural causes or from a sharp instrument.

Carver did not indicate why the head was cut from the body.

Mother Helped

"It was the cooperation of the girl that probably saved her from prosecution," he said. Her cooperation in helping us find the body of the fetus helped us determine the age of the fetus at the time of the abortion."

Moore said that before the body was recovered, the pathologists had set the age at 7 months but the additional measurements proved the fetus to be 6 months.

Carver said the 21-year-old mother was "scared, and that's why she did not report the incident." He added that she did act irrationally and "anyone else would be ill-advised to act in such a manner in similar circumstances."

Moore pointed out that a bill is pending in the state legislature that would require reports of birth and death from the time of conception.

Carver released the name of the girl to the press, but asked that it not be made public because he said he could see "no purpose that it would serve."

He said she is a 21-year-old working girl living with her mother. She had never been married and this was her first child.

He said she had not sought medical help after the abortion, but did so at his and Moore's urging.

The information about the girl was received confidentially by Oshkosh Police Chief Harry Guenther, and neither Carver nor Moore has been told who it came from.

If Determination was a factor, six-year-old Steve Ambrosius was a sure winner in the recent swimming meet at the Brillion Community Center, sponsored by the Lions Club. Steve, who competed in the nine years and under class, was one of 65 youngsters that participated in the first annual event. (Coenen Photo)

Country Club License Reaffirmed

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — The Waupaca Country Club remains the successful applicant for the city's ninth Class B liquor and fermented malt beverage license.

In a special meeting Monday, called to consider rescinding the action it took on June 1, granting the license to the Country Club, aldermen stood on their original decision by a vote of six to four.

In a two-hour session marked with legal debate, public examination of conscience, expressions of personal convictions, pleas for granting the license to David Schwenn, examination of motives and aldermen making their June 1 secret vote public record — there were sharp differences of opinions but no name calling.

The license, which has been a subject of controversy for the past week, may still not be safely in the hands of the Country Club, if a minimum of 191 city voters or more (15 percent of those who voted for governor in the last election) petition for an advisory referendum.

Some question whether the council acted in the best interests of the city.

for the City of Waupaca, requiring that the vote on such should be public.

City Atty. Laurie Anderson, however ruled that Aldermen Spanbauer and Taber did not have to disqualify themselves, and that there is a rule for voting aye or nay in the city ordinance and it does not matter whether an alderman does that with his mouth or on paper.

The council voted June 1 to grant the Class B license to the Waupaca Country Club after a presentation by Richard E. Johnson, speaking for the Country Club. He stated that the Club had been assured in a gentleman's agreement more than 10 years ago that it would be given a Class B license when one became available.

$200,000 Complex

Schwenn, owner of the Bring'er Inn Restaurant and the Welcome Inn Motel, presented his plan to council for building a $200,000 complex, including a cocktail lounge, banquet room for 300 persons, 24-unit motel and indoor swimming pool. He would build this year he said if the license was granted to him.

He expressed his views that such a complex would be of benefit to the city, would serve the groups now being accommodated at the Country Club.

Schwenn's proposed addition, at the present tax rate, would bring in new taxes estimated by the city assessor at $9,548.

Spanbauer, in replying to Greenberg's claim of a conflict of interest, pointed out he held only one share of stock in a non-profit country club, the same as each other member.

He then called for making the vote taken June 1 a matter of public record.

Ald. Taber also claimed the right to vote since he had purchased one share of stock in the Country Club for "X number of dollars" which has not change in value and he stood to make no financial gain.

The council voted unanimously to pick up the June 1 ballots and be counted, as Ald. Spanbauer suggested, and he asked to be first.

The Vote:

The record showed that those voting for the country club were Spanbauer, Edsall Huntoon (1st ward), Marilyn Looker, (3rd) Thomas Taber (1st), Waldemar Johnson (2nd), and LaVern Hanke (5th).

Voting to give the license to Schwenn were Elmer Feltz (5th), Everett Roloff (3rd), Dennis Schultz (4th), and Julius Johnson (4th).

The aldermen gave their reasons for voting as they did on June 1, some expressing strong personal convictions, some acting solely on the wishes of their constituency and some voting for more revenue for the city.

Spanbauer explained his vote. "Six days before the voting I went to our police chief and asked if the country club was violating the law operating as it did under a club license. The chief told me, yes, it was true, I asked why wasn't it stopped and was told: 'Ed, they run a very clean place, we know it and the Beverage Department knows it, and we have not seen fit to clean it up.'

The second ward alderman stated that there were some things about the operation of the club which made him angry such as the having the place he pays to have private made public and he did not like the way the club got its driveway with public funds — but the license was needed for the club to operate legally and on that principle he felt the club was entitled to the license. He stated further that a member of the club had asked for help and he felt morally obligated to give that help to an established institution.

Johnson stated that since he had voted for the Country Club license, people in his ward had expressed their views against it. "I respect their opinion and try to represent them to the best of my ability."

Tax Base

Huntoon said he had voted for the country club as a member of the licensing committee and he felt the only way he could vote honestly as an alderman was for the country club. "If we are talking about the tax base, the way we have thrown away money on other things in this city, the argument is ridiculous."

Johnson said he had voted strictly on the tax base. "This would bring $80,000-$90,000 into the city revenues during the ber of dollars" which has not change in value and he stood to make no financial gain.

Waupaca Board to Review Properties

Two Claims

The council's consideration to properties owned by the Waupaca School District will be one of the major items on board of education's agenda at 7:30 p.m. today.

There also will be a report on the four informational meetings held within the district during May and attended by 250 taxpayers and parents. Approximately 60 persons indicated their willingness to serve on the Citizens Advisory Committee of the Waupaca Country Club corporation. Taber is a member of the board of directors. He called this a conflict of interest and maintained that these two aldermen should have disqualified themselves from voting on June 1.

That the secret ballot vote taken was procedurally illegal, since the granting of a liquor license is in the nature of buildings and construction, inappropriating or raising money for the City of Waupaca, requiring that the vote on such should be public.

City Atty. Laurie Anderson, however ruled that Aldermen Spanbauer and Taber did not have to disqualify themselves, and that there is a rule for voting aye or nay in the city ordinance and it does not matter whether an alderman does that with his mouth or on paper.

Four teacher contracts will be considered: the resignation of Mrs. Mary Storck and the hiring of three new teachers who graduated from the state university system this month.

The administration is recommending contracts for Miss Susan Kussrow, sixth grade, Whitewater State University; Miss Penny Singleton, fourth grade, Stevens Point, and Larry Grace, high school mathematics and physics, Platteville.

Strike Slows Work at School

WITTENBERG — A strike by the Carpenters and Joiners Union has slowed work on the new Wittenberg-Birnbaum school. The strike includes a seven-county area which the union serves.

Business Manager Frank Pappenfuss said floor and ceiling tilers and painters were honoring the strike. If workers picketed the new building site, the other craft unions would not cross them, he said. There has been no picketing so far.

The general contractor, electricians, and plumbers still are working and, according to Pappenfuss, would continue to work since they are not a part of the trade union.

About two weeks' work remains on the interior of the school. A strike could delay the moving of equipment and starting of classes in the new building.

On the offer of Gordon Bublitz, Northeastern's chairman, to resign, most COG delegates felt this had little influence on merger possibilities. However, one praised him and said he hoped he would reconsider while another warned that Bublitz would still try to control the new agency.

A chance of merger surfaced again last week when Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson, COG chairman, and Bublitz worked out an agreement on the principle of merger. They listed numerous points of agreement but apparently didn't reach an accord on what to do with the northern counties.

Bitter Fight Expected in COG Over Merger Idea

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

There apparently is a chance that Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) officials will vote Wednesday to reconsider a merger with Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

But there probably will be a bitter floor fight because certain COG delegates are strongly opposed to a consolidation. They think it wouldn't do the job or they just don't want to associate with Northeastern's northern-most counties.

A survey of several COG delegates Monday indicated that there was a willingness to reconsider a merger but they talked in favor of mainly a merger of staffs and planning programs.

Bublitz Resignation

Some pro-merger delegates admitted the northern counties could determine if they still represented a serious hurdle. Merger talks earlier this year died when COG and Northeastern couldn't get together on

The COG vote in March wasn't against the northern counties staying in.

"We're all part of the same state, what the hell," he said.

The other COG delegates polled were apprehensive about keeping the five counties, including two who were strongly against it.

Interest Not in North

"Our interest isn't in the northern counties, and I'm sure the City of Neenah's isn't," said Mayor Roman Hauser, noting he favored starting with a three or four-county organization around Lake Winnebago and possibly expanding to the eight in the administrative district.

"I don't buy that (merger idea)," he said. "I think we should start out with an entire new organization." He suggested that each agency now was simply trying to preserve itself through merger.

However, Hauser said he felt the plans and programs of the two agencies could be assimilated into the new agency's planning operation, preserving what has been done. He called for a committee of area officials to arrange the new organization.

Hauser said he wasn't impressed with Bublitz's offer to resign six months after the merger agency was formed.

Joseph DeBruin, chairman of the Town of Buchanan, agreed with Hauser that a three- or four-county agency should be started with the others in the administrative district invited later.

On a merger, he said: "I think it's impossible." He noted that neither agency now met federal planning requirements, and locally, there won't be a compromise on the northern counties.

He was outspoken on Bublitz's resignation offer. He contended that Bublitz would still find a way to indirectly control the merger agency.

Stalling Tactic

DeBruin also labeled Northeastern's attempt to get reconsideration of merger as a stalling tactic. If counties don't vote to get out of Northeastern by June 30, they are obligated to stay in the agency through 1972, and a new planning arrangement is essential by next January.

Buckley said he felt that Bublitz's resignation wouldn't be a factor in a merger.

"I hate to see a highly competent individual who really is dedicated to Northeastern resign," he said. "I personally hope he reconsiders, and I would like to see him heading the new organization."

Ira Livingston, Town of Grand Chute chairman, and Edward Spierings, Little Chute president, took less definite views on a merger possibility.

Livingston said he opposed a large, unwieldy agency, such as the 13-county operation possible under the Bubolz-Anderson merger concept. He also said he felt the northern counties didn't have the same problems as this area but added, "I think we all should have an open mind on this," refusing to close the door on an organization including the five until he heard details.

He explained that he favored a merger of staffs and programs but felt a new political or policymaking organization must be formed, possibly with county and other elected officials on it. He said new bylaws would have to be set up na Olmsted for the Varsity Band director's award.

Cindy Algiers, Gloria Dey, Tracey King, Penny Long, Bruce Ramsdell, and Charles Truesdale each received a local band scholarship to the camp.

A total of 17 students won their second award, gold bar, and 30 students earned the Chenille NL letter.

Some question whether the council acted in the best interests of the city.

That the secret ballot vote taken was procedurally illegal, since the granting of a liquor license is in the nature of buildings and construction, inappropriating or raising money for the City of Waupaca, requiring that the vote on such should be public.

City Atty. Laurie Anderson, however ruled that Aldermen Spanbauer and Taber did not have to disqualify themselves, and that there is a rule for voting aye or nay in the city ordinance and it does not matter whether an alderman does that with his mouth or on paper.

The council voted June 1 to grant the Class B license to the Waupaca Country Club after a presentation by Richard E. Johnson, speaking for the Country Club. He stated that the Club had been assured in a gentleman's agreement more than 10 years ago that it would be given a Class B license when one became available.

$200,000 Complex

Schwenn, owner of the Bring'er Inn Restaurant and the Welcome Inn Motel, presented his plan to council for building a $200,000 complex, including a cocktail lounge, banquet room for 300 persons, 24-unit motel and indoor swimming pool. He would build this year he said if the license was granted to him.

He expressed his views that such a complex would be of benefit to the city, would serve the groups now being accommodated at the Country Club.

Schwenn's proposed addition, at the present tax rate, would bring in new taxes estimated by the city assessor at $9,548.

Spanbauer, in replying to Greenberg's claim of a conflict of interest, pointed out he held only one share of stock in a non-profit country club, the same as each other member.

He then called for making the vote taken June 1 a matter of public record.

Ald. Taber also claimed the right to vote since he had purchased one share of stock in the Country Club for "X number of dollars" which has not change in value and he stood to make no financial gain.

Food Stamp Plan Being Considered

A study that could lead to the replacement of the surplus commodities program with a food stamp plan in Outagamie County was authorized Monday by the county's board of Social Services.

The study will be made by Supv. Herman Ripp of Appleton and Eugene Porter, a citizen member of the board.

Ripp, in the past several weeks, has been conducting an informal examination of the commodities-food stamps issue. Although discussion on the matter today was brief, Ripp expected that 40 Wisconsin counties planned that based on his conversations with various people, use surplus commodities conversion to a food stamp program seems to have considerable support in the county.

Ripp said he believes the change to food stamps could result in money savings, although he did not have figures showing the cost of the buy more food in retail stores-surplus commodities program. He also told board members that the food purchased through gram is designed to help low nutritional diet for recipients.

"If people don't like surplus use of an agricultural abundance, I don't think we should crum it down their County social services de-throats," Ripp said. As part of their study, Ripp said he and Porter would talk to persons who receive commodities.

County Executive Alvin Woehler, although indicating favor for the food stamp plan, said one major problem might be getting assurance that people use food stamp money for the stamps.

Ronald Scheidt, a citizen member of the board, was concerned about persons who might not be able to afford food stamps but would no longer be able to get surplus commodities. Ripp presented board members with data which showed that 40 Wisconsin counties planned that based on his conversations with various people, use surplus commodities conversion to a food stamp program seems to have considerable support in the county.

On Thursday the cubs and their parents had a picnic in Lindsay Park. Squires presented awards with help from Mike Frazier, Manawa's new Eagle Scout.

Mark Keuler Is Named Trustee

STOCKBRIDGE — Mark Keuler has been appointed trustee on the village board here to fill the unexpired term of David Schommer who has moved to Shawano.

Keuler, who served one term before losing the office by a narrow margin in the last election, will serve until spring 1972. He took the oath of office Monday night during the regular board meeting.

Goes to Full Board Tonight

County Proposes Residency Rule

A proposal has been made to require all future Outagamie County employees to live in the county as a condition of their employment.

The recommendation was endorsed Monday night by the county board's rules and legislative committee, and is expected to go to the full board tonight.

Under the proposal, new employees would have six months after they started work to move into the county. The rule, if adopted, would not affect any present employees who does not now live in the county.

Committee members agreed on the proposal on the basis that no present employees would be affected. County Executive Alvin Woehler said only a few employees now live out of the county.

Extra Work

Supv. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, said the county should try to avoid another situation like that of former welfare director Alfred Eggert who lived in Shawano County the entire time he was employed by the county.

In other action, the committee decided that a committee chairman should not expect extra compensation for preparing a meeting agenda.

The action resulted in denying Supv. Charles Wussow, the rules committee chairman, an additional half-day's pay for preparing the agenda for Monday night's meeting.

Wussow had asked for the additional pay, saying he had spent the afternoon at the courthouse going through bills before the state legislature to prepare for the meeting.

Supv. G. Allen Bubolz and

Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt said committee chairmen had to expect doing extra work without compensation as part of the prestige of the job.

Supv. Paul Huseby, however, said a committee chairman should be paid for the time he puts in.

Wussow, who previously has advocated an annual salary for supervisors to replace the per diem arrangement, said the debate was the best argument he has heard for an annual salary.

Clintonville Business

Change in Owners of Shoe Store Revealed

CLINTONVILLE — Negotiations were completed Friday for the change in ownership of the Schauder and Schauder Shoe Store, 43 S. Main St., one of the oldest businesses on the Clintonville retail scene.

Details of the transaction were not made public. However, beginning July 1, Dave Husman, manager of The Merc, a department store here, will assume ownership of the shoe store.

Husman has a broad spectrum of experience in retailing, including family footwear. He received training in several states as manager of stores for one of the leading family chains.

The Schauders have purchased a home in Clintonville and will vacate their living quarters over the store. The Husmans will occupy the flat.

The Husmans will retain the name of Schauder and Schauder, and will continue basic policies established by the Schauders over the years. They will carry the same nationally known brand names.

Hugo Schauder will remain as an active participant in the business of the store for some time.

Members of the board at The Merc stated their pleasure with the operation of the department store under Husman and wished him well in his ownership venture. Their search for a new manager has begun.

Excerpts from "A Civic Century — 1855-1955," a publication about the city, state:

"Schauder and Schauder is the firm name that has been used by members of the Schauder family ever since the younger generation took over where William A. Schauder Sr. left off. William A. Schauder Sr. came to this community from Germany in 1879, and in 1880 started his shoe business on the same site where the business is still daily conducted.

Sons Took Over

"Mr Schauder was a master shoemaker, and in the early days made many shoes especially for the lumbermen and river drivers, who drove the logs on the Pigeon, Embarrass and Wolf rivers. He retired from business in 1917 because of his health, and his sons took over.

"The original store building was moved off in 1898, and still can be seen on the south side of Sixth Street, where it was converted into a residence. The present building, located at 43 S. Main St., was built in 1898.

"William Schauder Jr. and Arnold Schauder, sons of the founder, took over in 1917. In 1927 they were joined by Hugo Schauder, a younger brother. In later years, Arnold moved to Shawano, and William Jr. died. Hugo Schauder is still the active manager of the business.

"The store has an unusually interesting history, whereby members of the Schauder family have been in management for the past 75 years. It is a retail shoe and footwear business, and its business slogan for many years has been 'Shoes for Pa, Ma and the Kids'. Hugo is a native of Clintonville. His wife, Viola, has been an able assistant in the business."

Hugo Schauder bought Arnold's share in the business in the spring of 1937. In 1953, the late Charles Mack purchased a part interest in the business with Hugo Schauder. Mack died a year ago.

Seymour Girl, Husband They Mix School, Work

MADISON — Lyle and Kris Schaefer have what it takes to successfully combine marriage and academic life with part-time employment and volunteer work.

The Schaeferes will graduate from the University of Wisconsin (UW) this month with B.A. degrees in anthropology.

Before coming to Madison in 1968, Lyle, originally from Plymouth, attended the university's Sheboygan Center, while Kris, from Seymour, was a student at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Kris is the daughter of Robert Mill, 450 Fulton St., Seymour, and the late Mrs. Mill. She graduated from Seymour High School in 1966.

Besides carrying full academic loads at UW, Mr. and Mrs. Schaefer have worked since their marriage, almost a year ago, to pay the expenses of their education. But even their jobs and classes at the university didn't stop them from becoming involved with volunteer activities.

stitute. She had a class that night. I went, and I enjoyed working with the handicapped so much that I signed up as a regular volunteer to visit the colony several times a month."

By the second semester, Kris' enthusiasm had affected Lyle, and together they became involved with a pilot project at Mendota State Hospital. Along with other volunteers, psychologists and social workers, the Schaeferes helped to coordinate programs for patients about to be released.

The Schaeferes spent several nights a week talking and working with these patients in an effort to make their adjustments to the outside world less difficult.

Glad They Transferred

"It was a very fulfilling experience," Lyle said. "I suspect most of these persons are lonely. I'm glad we were able to give some of our time just to be their friends."

Their experiences during the past two years have made the Schaeferes glad they transferred to the Madison campus.

"I think a lot of people, especially those in smaller communities such as ours, have a false conception of Madison and the university," Kris said. "There's a great variety of people here, with many different interests and attitudes. But this cross-section is what makes the university the challenge it has been to us."

Lyle added, "Despite the adverse publicity and all the talk in the last few years about the downgrading of American universities, I still think UW is one of the great schools in the country. The quality of education here has not changed markedly."

The Schaeferes plan to continue their education after graduation. Both will continue to work until they have saved enough money to return to school.

Police Deaths and Politics

It is unfortunate that two well-known police agency heads were not invited to the White House conference with President Nixon on the growing problem of attacks upon policemen. Whether or not there were political connotations to the meeting and the list of those asked to participate, the omissions have left the President open to such a charge.

A spokesman for the White House announced that the list was drawn up by Federal Bureau of Investigation director, J. Edgar Hoover, already a political issue and a source of considerable disagreement as to his efficiency, motives and judgment. New York Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy had earlier criticized the way in which Washington police ignored civil rights during the mass arrests of obstructionists in Washington in the latter's effort to halt government operations. Mr. Murphy was not invited although the sniper fire in New York recently cut down two New York policemen and seven have died in that city in the last five months.

Quinn Tamm, executive director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police also was not invited and charged that Mr. Hoover simply didn't like him. Seven other IACP officials were included.

Such conferences actually do little to find ways of solving such serious problems as the attacks upon policemen — more than 100 have died in the last year, 51 since Jan. 1. A Justice Department official even said the meeting was "window dressing." Real proposals for dealing with the issue are expected to come through federal, state and local official conferences this month.

But once again it appears that President Nixon has perhaps unwittingly allowed himself to be put into a difficult and embarrassing position by an underling. In so doing he has only made it more difficult to find another director for the FBI if Mr. Hoover is now or soon will be not serving in the best interests of that agency and therefore of the nation.

An aide to the FBI director explained Commissioner Murphy's absence "because he was in New York personally directing the investigation of the murders" and giving the impression that the New York chief was invited. Reportedly the same inference went to President Nixon and Attorney General John Mitchell. If this is true, then Mr. Hoover's value is obviously impaired. Giving a false impression to the President of the United States is not worthy of anyone in high public office.

Perspective on Vietnam

As our government tries desperately to disentangle us from the morass in Indochina and many Americans go through almost as agonizing decisions concerning their opinions of the war, we always wonder whether the conflict and the extent of our participation were unavoidable. Did all Americans, foreign policy experts, governmental officials and research scholars agree that we should fight with more than half a million troops to insure that vague freedom from aggression that has become the excuse of intervention?

No.

In 1962, the Midwest Seminar of United States Foreign Policy sponsored by the Universities of Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, was held at the Johnson Foundation estate Wingspread in Racine. One of the papers prepared for the seminar was "The United States and the Sino-Soviet Bloc in Southeast Asia." It was written by Oliver Clubb Jr., then a research associate in the Foreign Policy Studies Division of the Brookings Institution, an independent, non-partisan organization devoted to "research, education, and publication in economics, government, foreign policy, and the social sciences generally." Mr. Clubb was known as an Asian specialist, had his doctorate from the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies and had spent two years in Burma at the school's Rangoon-Hopkins Center for Southeast Asian Studies. He had been an analyst in foreign policy and Asian affairs for the Library of Congress and had done further Asian research for Rand and the Governmental Affairs Institute.

Mr. Clubb then was fairly well qualified to give his views about our role in Southeast Asia. He was assisted in the report by other Asian scholars from several universities, officials of the Departments of Defense and State.

Mr. Clubb's paper is no wild-eyed advocacy of one policy or another. After background review he presents alternatives for the United States in Southeast Asia, the strengths and weaknesses he saw in the various alternatives and some overall general recommendations. But the message is very clear and of course even more so today; sending in massive numbers of American troops would be a major error.

At the time Mr. Clubb wrote, Ngo Dinh Diem was more than 1½ years away from downfall and assassination. But Mr. Clubb's statements could in major respects be applied to every Saigon regime since. "A basic weakness of South Vietnam's government derives from its continued heavy reliance on foreign economic and military assistance without sufficient measures to obtain domestic support . . . The government of South Vietnam cannot maintain itself in power without American assistance . . . the government could easily be encouraged by increased American aid to believe that the job of defeating the Viet Cong will be done for it without the reforms necessary to expand its political base."

Mr. Clubb carefully delineated the differences between conditions in Vietnam and those in Malaya and the Philippines where Communist guerrillas were defeated or converted, at least temporarily. He warns that "intervention by American combat units would almost certainly produce a countervailing increase in the number of North Vietnamese infiltrators . . . American military intervention in South Vietnam would have little chance of producing its intended result."

He said that the Ho Chi Minh trail, which Americans continue to bomb heavily, "is a convenience rather than an essential for infiltrating men and supplies into South Vietnam." He cites stronger Viet Cong strength than was recognized and in a particularly apt statement for today, "the frustrations arising from America's role in South Vietnam would probably generate domestic political pressures that could severely restrict the administration's freedom of action — not only with respect to South Vietnam but also on other important cold war issues." So today we have strong congressional moves to cut the military authority of the President of the United States, handicaps in dealing with the serious issues of the Middle East and a major attempt to cut in half our troops in Europe. Disillusion, neo-isolationism, cut-backs in foreign aid, all can in great part be blamed upon our frustrations in Vietnam.

In a wider sense Mr. Clubb warned that "the United States has frequently judged Southeast Asian governments and their leaders by the extent to which they pay lip service to prevailing American opinion and has disregarded the nature of those governments, what they mean to their own people, and how their basic interests and objectives relate to those of the United States . . . Where the United States has failed in Southeast Asia, efforts to transplant American policies, concepts and methods, without adapting them to Asian conditions and requirements, have often been responsible."

It is easy to judge the war by hindsight. But Mr. Clubb's report was made before we committed many American troops in a drive for a military victory, whatever the rhetoric of the times. In spite of President Nixon's apparent sincerity to get us out, we are still using false terminology.

Misunderstandings, the isolation of the presidency, false assumptions, poor advice, pride, obstinacy, ambition — all were responsible for the war in Vietnam. As shown in Mr. Clubb's pamphlet, the facts and the sound advice and the intelligent recommendations were there but they were ignored. To a large extent the same situation persists in Washington today.

A Word Edgewise—

My Lai, Yuba City—Who Bears Responsibility for Such Crimes?

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

As body after body was dug up on the banks of the Feather River near Yuba City, Calif., totaling 23 as of this writing, one inevitably thought of My Lai and the crimes for which Lt. William Calley has been convicted. When the Calley verdict came in, it was greeted by the most amazing convergence of opinion. At one end of the political spectrum, anti-war militants proclaimed Calley to be a scapegoat because "we are all guilty." At the other, George Wallace let Calley off because, in his view, there is nothing wrong with shooting Vietnamese. Indeed, the heat was momentarily so intense that President Nixon, uncharacteristically, lost his cool and intervened prematurely and unwisely.

Now as far as Calley is concerned, he has received a fair trial by his peers and has been convicted. He is not a typical American officer, he violated the rules of engagement (that is, disobeyed orders), and behaved in a bestial manner. If it can be demonstrated by due process that anyone told him to violate the rules of engagement, that officer shares his guilt. And anyone in higher echelons who attempted to cover up the dreadful business should be punished for complicity. The fact is that the U.S. army in Vietnam, fighting under strange and foreboding circumstances (in 1967, Radio Liberation gave the "Miss Viet Cong Award" to a 17-year-old who had killed 31

"imperialist invaders"), has gone out of its way to avoid "killing" civilians — in the process, of course, augmenting the refugee problem.

Who Is Responsible?

Recently the whole question of "responsibility" for My Lai has hit the press and other media, with some observers going so far as to argue that Presidents Johnson and Nixon, and other high officials, have violated the Nuremberg rules and should be tried for war crimes. What precisely do we mean here by "responsibility"? The critics use it in a purely legal sense, though in fact there are different meanings that need exploration. By definition, the President of the United States is politically responsible to the electorate for anything that happens during his term of office. Personally, for example, Herbert Hoover was about as "responsible" for the Depression as the Wali of Swat, but he had to carry the can. Lyndon Johnson was no aeronautical engineer, yet the TFX (F-111) fiasco landed on his doorstep. That is the name of the game.

In a society of more than 200 million, there is bound to be a percentage of sadists, of butchers, and just as one turned up at My Lai, another has appeared in Yuba City. To move the proposition about responsibility to this level, we can say that under the rules the state of California and the county (i.e., the governor and the sheriff) are politically responsible for the abattoir along the Feather River. A citizen has a right to protection and when more than 20 migrant workers disappear without a trace — without anyone even missing them — there is obviously something wrong somewhere. The people can, and doubtless will, take this into consideration when they next vote for governor or sheriff.

However, unless one accepts the doctrine of the Moscow Trials — that one can be "objectively guilty" of a crime of which he knew nothing and which in no way resulted from his orders or purposeful acts — it is impossible to apply any doctrine of legal guilt unless personal knowledge can be demonstrated. Murder is against the law in California just as the deliberate killing of non-combatants or enemy prisoners is a violation of the Articles of War and the carefully worked out rules of engagement in Vietnam. The My Lai massacre should be put in perspective with the Feather River massacre; both are appalling aberrations and deviations from the norms of decency which most Americans, most of the time, thank God, observe.

Church Social Pleasant Event

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for June 10, 1871.

On Wednesday evening last, there was an unusually large gathering of Appleton's good citizens at the residence of the Rev. J. L. Steele, to enjoy the Church social appointed at that place.

Mrs. Steel and Mrs. A. J. Smith united in receiving the company, and by their happy graces of hospitality made their numerous guests participants of the general merriment and enjoyment of this occasion.

The grounds were beautifully lighted up with Chinese lanterns, while transparencies bid "all welcome" to the fairy scene within.

Naught occurred to mar the festivities, save that the moments flew only too rapidly, and at a late hour the guests returned to their homes to dream of the event and anticipate the next social.

These gatherings are becoming a noticeable feature in Appleton society, increasing in interest constantly.

Wisconsin Report

Old-Time State Fair
Nearing End; Now
Amusement Show

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — It is becoming more difficult for state officials to disguise the reality that the state fair as generations of Wisconsin residents knew it is dying. Legislators, the state executive office, and others are understandably skittish about candor under the circumstances. In a half million Wisconsin hearts there will be a regretful twinge about a realization that this symbol of Wisconsin rural life and culture and the agricultural enterprise is about to pass into history.

Yet the signals are clear. The chief of the State Department of Local Affairs and Development, which has the state fair under its jurisdictional wings for reasons that this reporter, among others, never quite comprehended, has notified the fair staff to be prepared for dissolution of this ancient institution. If Charles Hill is guessing correctly, he may yet be disproving that ancient adage that holds that a governmental service or institution once created continues in perpetuity.

Lucey Sees Demise

On the face of it, there is a chance of some form of state exposition surviving, but in a realistic judgment it is remote. Like other governors, Pat Lucey has worried about the fair. Like others, he concluded that the fair with its present facilities at West Allis cannot survive.

But he has made a gesture, and that is the only description that applies, toward an alternative in the form of a new quasi-public facility that would be created and managed by private developers under lease arrangements with the state. The highly tentative design suggests as a major element a big sports facility that would be financed through about $18 million of state bonding.

Strictly Personal

Political Claims and Drug Advertising

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The sight of a politician asking manufacturers to "document" all their advertising claims is something on the order of Jack the Ripper urging stronger laws against the crime of spitting on the sidewalk.

No doubt Sen. George McGovern has the highest of motives in his proposed bill to force "conclusive documentation" of all advertising claims. But why doesn't he apply it to his own field first of all?

If a candidate for public office were compelled by law — and by threat of a suit for damages and possibly imprisonment — to make no claims, allegations, insinuations, comparisons and promises that could not be proved, confirmed and guaranteed, the whole structure of political campaigning would collapse in American life.

When a presidential candidate tells us he has a "sure formula" for getting us out of a war more quickly and painlessly than his opponent, he should either produce his evidence or be prosecuted for committing fraud against the gullibility of the electorate. When a candidate for any office rants against "government expense and waste," and then builds up a larger deficit than the men he excoriated,

But the blur in the plan is suggested plainly by the lack of explicit suggestions for the use of such a costly structure. The news dispatches persistently refer to the "prospective" tenancy of the Milwaukee Bucks professional basketball team.

Concerned About Debt

The Lucey administration has already shown some concern about the pace of state long term debt accumulation and what it foretells about painful debt service costs in the years ahead. There has been a tendency to hold down some of the proposals for capital expenditure for directly public purposes, for example.

Only in the most optimistic view will there be any conviction that an $18 million bond issue will be imposed as a tax obligation of all the people of Wisconsin for a purpose that is so opaquely described, and at best would benefit the Milwaukee metropolitan neighborhood primarily. To suggest that a taxpayer in Winneconne should help to pay for a hall for the Bucks is like proposing that the resident of Milton Junction be asked to take over some of the bond liability for Lambeau Field in Green Bay.

One suspects that this thinly detailed prospectus would not now be on the record except for the difficult political position of Rep. Robert Huber of West Allis, who is at once the community-appointed custodian of the state fair, and the No. 1 Democrat in the legislature.

Why is the historic fair in danger of extinction?

This former customer at the turnstiles has a conviction. The warrant came a dozen or more years ago when the state incautiously allowed the denigration of the institution as a showcase for rural life and industry and began converting it into an amusement park. As long-time customers, I and many others voted their objections by staying away.

The old style fair might not have survived as a self-supporting exhibit of a vital slice of Wisconsin. But it would now have a claim upon the support of state citizens as a whole who are now plainly indifferent to its ominous slide.

what punishment should be meted out for this palpably false claim? His hope is that the voters will forget, as they usually do.

The commercial advertiser may be sometimes guilty of what the Romans tactfully called the suggestio falsi or the suppressio veri — the indirect falsehood, or the concealment of all the facts — but your ordinarily successful politician is a thousand times more often indelicate for the falsi crimen, or the lie direct.

If our public figures, who are supposed to be running for the benefit of the commonweal, are permitted to engage in such mass desecration of the facts, with no effective restraint upon their lurid imaginations and fictional powers, then why should we expect private entrepreneurs, who are frankly in the business for gain, to adopt a loftier or more rigorous set of standards for puffing their products into public favor?

In any culture, private morality takes its cue from public morality; we behave with the latitude our leaders permit themselves; and thus there is little crime of any kind in a country where the leaders in public life are respected as honest, honorable and truthful men. Contrariwise, if we see that they have succeeded by deceitful stratagems, such become our own recipe for personal and commercial success.

When Congress passes a law making it a crime, with biting penalties, for a candidate or officeholder to make claims or promises that he cannot substantiate, then we will have achieved the moral authority to demand the same integrity in our headache pills and our detergents.

U.S. Upset by Treaty Between Russia, Cairo

New Soviet Arms Shipments Expected To Bring Demands for Aid to Israel

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK will be an effort to keep the lid both on the Israeli government and on American politicians. WASHINGTON — Although the U.S. has now received the word from Cairo that the new Soviet-Egyptian treaty has not and will not affect the President Nixon's plan for an interim settlement along the Suez Canal, that assurance ignores the prospect of dangerous new escalation of the Middle East arms race. What is expected here is a new round of Soviet arms

Evans Novak shipments to Cairo. In themselves, these new arms probably would affect the so-called military balance between Israel and Egypt only marginally, if at all. But if the military effect is only marginal, the psychological and political impact could be disastrous for the Nixon administration's wise, patient courtship of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and the Arab world.

The reason new Soviet arms for Egypt would bring extreme political pressure on President Nixon, particularly from his Democratic presidential rivals, to retaliate by ending the U.S. embargo on new arms sales to Israel. That reversal of administration policy would turn the whole Arab world against the U.S. once again.

Have New Weapon
In short, the new Moscow-Cairo treaty, with its heavy emphasis on "strengthening the defense capacity" of Egypt, has now handed the Russians a lethal new weapon to reverse the pro-American atmosphere in Cairo. Nothing can accomplish that reversal more quickly than screaming headlines in Arab newspapers and emotional commentaries over Radio Cairo about compensating U.S. arms to the hated Israelis whose troops now occupy one-tenth of Egypt.

Both the State Department, which has been running Mideast policy in this administration, and the White House are fully aware of this political danger. They have also known for two years that a cardinal tenet of Soviet policy in the Arab world is to keep hostility between the Arabs and the U.S. at the highest possible pitch short of a shooting war.

Accordingly, the immediate reaction in the White House to the news, fully expected of new Soviet arms shipments to Egypt

For example, leaders of the American — Jewish community, are already incensed about what they regard as the tough, heavy-handed treatment accorded Prime Minister Golda Meir by Secretary of State William P. Rogers in their first meeting in Jerusalem May 27.

Hostility between the prime minister and the secretary was so intense that Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco had to meet privately for two hours to work out an agenda before the second meeting could be held in Tel Aviv the next day.

Although that second meeting was a distinct success, Rogers' total frankness in his conversations with Israeli leaders angered not only the Israelis but some of their friends in the U.S. Congress. Thus, any new Soviet arms shipments are likely to be seized on by pro-Israeli Democrats — three specific examples are Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, and Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut — as evidence that Rogers' policy of pressuring Israel to withdraw from the Suez Canal amounts to selling out Israel to Moscow's advantage.

The corollary to that will be a bipartisan domestic political campaign demanding that Mr. Nixon retaliate in kind by immediately meeting Israel's long-standing request for new military assistance from the U.S.

It is precisely this prospective scenario that now troubles Mr. Nixon's top advisers on the Middle East. The fact that the new Soviet-Egyptian treaty puts the initiative in Moscow's hands simply heightens the danger.

Ever since last August, when the Egyptians violated the ceasefire along the Suez Canal, Mr. Nixon has played cool, canny politics in the Arab-Israeli struggle. The new treaty, binding Cairo and Moscow, threatens to take the play away from the President and put it back in Moscow, giving the Russians far greater power than before to cut the fragile ties between the U.S. and Egypt.

Ruling on 'Little Man' Gives Papers Extra Protection From Libel Charges

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has pushed freedom of the press to a new frontier with a 5-3 ruling that could give open newspapers and the airwaves to fuller reporting and wider discussion of issues of public concern.

Until the court acted in a Pennsylvania case Monday, a private individual who claimed he had been defamed in the press or on the air stood a good chance of collecting astronomical damages from a jury.

The ruling removes that shadow. Henceforth, as with public officials and other individuals who voluntarily cast themselves into the vortex of public events, the "little man" must prove he was a victim of actual malice. This means he must show that the writer or editor either engaged in a calculated falsehood or was reckless about checking into the facts.

Smaller Organizations
Some of the kinds of things that now can freely be published or said on the tube were suggested by Justice Byron R. White, no admirer of the new standard: Nonmalicious accounts of the health hazards of products, the mental stability of business executives, the racial and religious prejudices of individuals and groups.

Small newspapers and magazines and small radio and television stations are likely to benefit the most. Without the financial resources of their big brothers, they were in a precarious position to take chances.

As Justice William J. Brennan Jr. put it in announcing the court's judgment: "Fear of guessing wrong must inevitably create self-censorship and thus the danger that the legitimate utterance will be deterred."

But now, freed of anxiety, they may be encouraged to practice more often what Brennan described as a function of the free speech amendment: "ventilation of public issues."

The case itself concerned a privacy suit brought against Philadelphia radio station WIP by George A. Rosenbloom, a former distributor of nudist magazines in the area.

When police raided newsstands in a drive against "obscenity," the station referred to the seized material as "obscene books." Later, when Rosenbloom went to federal district court to block the police, WIP described the suit as an attempt by "girlie-book peddlers" to force police to lay off the smut literature racket.

A trial jury awarded Rosenbloom $750,000 in damages under a Pennsylvania law that shields the media from damage suits by private individuals only when "reasonable care" in finding out the truth is exercised. The judge reduced the award to $250,000.

In 1964, in a case involving The New York Times, the Supreme Court formulated the rule that public officials have to show actual malice to collect libel damages.

Public Figures
This was expanded by the court three years later in a case involving The Associated Press to protect the media from suits brought by "public figures."

Later decisions rounded out the definition to include candidates for minor police offices and police officers.

The jump to private individuals such as Rosenbloom was the product of an unusual coalition. Including, strangely, a justice who wasn't even in the case.

The generally conservative Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and the similarly conservative Justice Harry A. Blackmun shared Brennan's views. They, too, felt a distinction between "public" and "private" individuals and institutions is artificial in light of the public's interest in "public issues and events."

Since Justice Hugo L. Black would have gone even further and guarded the media against suits based on knowing falsehoods, the new standard had four votes. But White would not agree with them unless a "public issue" was under discussion, and Justices Thurgood Marshall, Potter Stewart and John M. Harlan dissented because they believed individuals should be able to collect damages if their reputations are hurt.

The knowing objection to libel laws by Justice William O. Douglas really made the new standard possible, though he had disqualified himself when Ramsey Clark surfaced as Rosenbloom's lawyer.

Clark, the former attorney general, is a law partner to Simon H. Rifkind, Douglas' own lawyer, in a recent dispute with some members of the House over his off-bench conduct. Though Douglas has never said why for the record, he has stepped out of cases involving lawyers from the Rifkind firm.

Of course, it takes five voting justices to form a majority. White provided this vital fifth vote against Rosenbloom although he did not subscribe to all of Brennan's judgment.

Brennan's 27-page opinion stressed repeatedly the lack of logic he finds in trying to draw a legal line between "private" individuals, whose activities are not to be reported freely, and "public" individuals, about whom the media are to report freely.

All "Public" Men
"Voluntarily or not," he said, "we are all 'public' men to some degree. Conversely, some aspects of the lives of even the most public men fall outside the area of matters of public or general concern."

In a nation committed to private property, Brennan said, private hands control "vast areas of economic and social power that vitally affect the nature and quality of life."

The people, therefore, have an interest in far more than politics and politicians, he said.

"We honor the commitment to robust debate on public issues, which is embodied in the First Amendment, by extending constitutional protection to all discussion and communication involving matters of public or general concern, without regard to whether the persons involved are famous or anonymous," he wrote.

Milwaukee Commuter Train Derails

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A commuter train carrying about 40 passengers derailed Monday at a small overpass which officials said may have been nudged out of line by a truck an hour earlier.

Eighteen persons were taken to a hospital after the Milwaukee Road's two-car "Cannonball" rolled on its side 100 yards beyond the suburban trestle. Six persons were hospitalized, none in serious condition.

Engineer W.C. Schultz of Watertown, who pilots the train daily on its evening run from Milwaukee to Watertown, said he detected the 22-foot span across a narrow street was slightly askew as he approached it.

"The bridge was out of line," he said. "As soon as I saw it, I applied the emergency brakes." The train wheels left the rails beyond the bridge he said.

The engine and one car skidded onto their sides, and the second car was left perched at a precarious angle atop a 20-foot embankment as shaken passengers scurried under a rear door.

Brookfield police Capt. Jerome Wolff said a cement truck, heavily laden with moist concrete, had rammed the steel beams under the trestle an hour earlier.

The bridge has only a 9 foot, 6 inch clearance above the pavement and is rammed "several times a month" by large trucks, Wolff said. Persons living within 100 yards of the trestle said the bridge, whose tractor with the permission of one party, but cannot be used since concrete abutments have been violently hit by trucks.

Officials said the train was traveling about 45 miles an hour when it derailed.

Race Disregarded in Districting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has ruled states can lump minority race areas with white sections to form a voting district represented by legislators elected at large.

The court said Monday the action is unconstitutional only if voters from a specific area can show their voting power is diluted by the tactics.

The 5-3 ruling in an Indiana case overturned a federal district court ruling that Indianapolis blacks were victims of racial gerrymandering and were entitled to their own district with state legislators elected by and responsible to them.

A ruling upholding the lower court would have meant a larger voice for blacks and other minority groups in state legislatures.

Areas Combined
The Supreme Court decision means all states may district their legislatures on the basis of population without regard to racial living patterns.

Thirty-eight states currently combine minority and white voter areas.

One state where the ruling could have immediate results is Virginia, where a redistricting plan had been suspended by Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The House Privileges and Elections Committee of the Virginia General Assembly promptly shelved a plan for single-member districts upon hearing of the court's decision and asked to meet with Mitchell to determine if the ruling removed the Justice Department's objections to the state plan.

Voting Power
The Virginia plan would have used just what the Supreme Court upheld—multimember districts where several representatives were elected at large to represent an area of several districts.

The Justice Department had objected to the plan, saying it would cut the voting power of minority groups in five major cities.

The ruling apparently eased redistricting problems in other states.

"Certainly this is going to make our problem much easier than if we are required to go all the way with single-member districts," said South Carolina state Sen. L. Marion Gressette.

West Virginia House Speaker Lewis McManus agreed. "The way things stood previously, we would have had a fantastic problem in logistics and that would have multiplied our political problems many times over," he said.

In California, state Sen. Merlyn Dymally said he doubted the decision would affect the Senate elections and reapportionment committee's plans but "may change the strategy of the California Mexican-American community."

Other states reported the decision would have little or no effect on their redistricting.

But one Georgia legislative leader said the ruling means "you'll see all kinds of trading going on so everyone can hold onto his seat."

Man Kicked At Tom Jones Party, He Says

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Singer Tom Jones marked his 31st birthday Monday with a rock music promoter saying he was bruised in the pocketbook and a boxer saying he was kicked in the eye.

The Welsh vocalist departed for Winnipeg, Man., after Dane County authorities said a civil summons was served at the request of Michael J. Maret, 27, who accused Jones of having kicked him during a pre-dawn party at a hotel.

Maret, of Miami, Fla., said he was kicked in the face outside a hotel room after making a second futile attempt to join the party. Deputy Sheriff N. B. Willis said a civil summons was served on a man identified as Jones.

Maret's lawyer, John D. Hanson, said the summons reflects his client's interest in a civil action, and that Maret doesn't wish to file charges.

Jones performed Sunday in Dane County Coliseum with a row of policemen striving to restrain knots of frenzied teenage girls who surged from the audience toward the stage. Two girls broke through the police line and kissed the singer.

But the affair attracted only about 5,000 spectators after seating had been arranged for 9,707.

Young Pay Dearly For Mind Drugs

BY ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
"I've had to pick up the pieces of boys and girls in trouble from drugs. It isn't pleasant," says Dr. Dana L. Farnsworth, psychiatrist and director of University Health Services at Harvard University. One mother speaks: "I know what it is to talk my son down from a bad LSD trip, to have him sleep for three days straight after a high on speed. I know what it is to watch him become completely paranoid, to hold a 17-year-old 'child' in my arms and let him cry. . . all this from a boy who was outgoing, lovable, fun-loving. . ."

Just how many young people and adults also get into trouble through use of mind-influencing drugs is not known. Abuse of alcohol, the progenitor perhaps of drugs that affect the mind, has resulted in some 6,000,000 or more alcoholics in the United States alone.

Young people are more easily injured than their elders by hallucinogenic and other drugs, authorities agree. They have "yet-uncrystallized system personality," and some of those who turn to drugs "may have unstable personalities to begin with" — they might have gotten all right if they hadn't added the burden of the influence of mind drugs.

People vary in susceptibility to diseases, like flu, and often "the kids who shouldn't use drugs are the ones most likely to do so and become hurt, to become odd man out," says Dr. Herbert D. Kleber of Yale University.

Measuring the real effects from drugs bought on the street is complicated by the fact they are very often adulterated, or vary in quality and potency. A sick of marijuana may be only, alfalfa, or marijuana laced LSD or strychnine.

One of the great harms concerning marijuana was that for decades it was misrepresented as being extremely dangerous and a cause of crime and rape and bizarre behavior. When young people discovered this was not true, they tended not to believe official warnings about other drugs, like heroin and LSD, which are far more dangerous, and they tended to use them.

Some Hurt

This is not to say that marijuana has never hurt anyone, as some of its advocates insist.

A recent assessment is given in the report, "Marijuana and Health," issued by the National Institute of Mental Health, with comments from Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of NIMH.

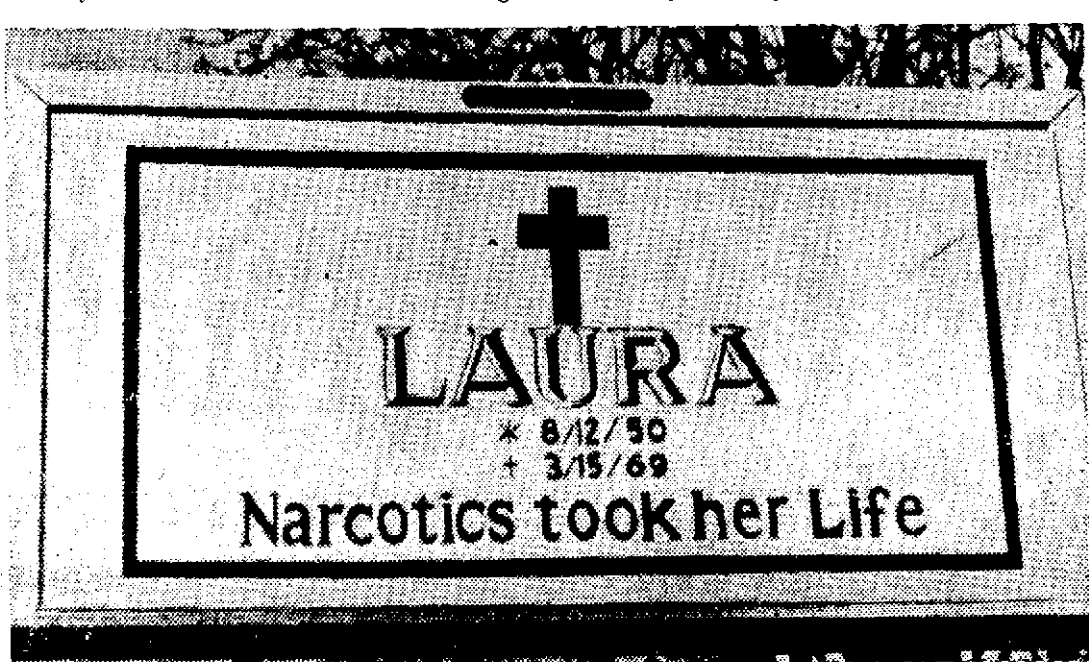

"The bulk of healthy young people, with short-term use of the drug, will have no deleterious effects although a few of them will . . . and . . . in high enough doses, a psychotic episode can occur in everybody." "The health picture with respect to marijuana must at present be regarded as fragmentary and clearly incomplete. . . Many of the most important questions regarding the implications of long-term, chronic use will require significant periods of time to answer."

No evidence yet links marijuana with birth defects of babies born to users, or with lung cancer from smoking pot. — Marijuana "is a relatively minor contributor to major crimes and violence in any country in the world in which it is used."

But there is "increasing evidence that frequent, heavy use of marijuana is correlated with a loss of interest in convention goals and the development of a kink of lethargy."

"It is generally conceded that marijuana does not necessarily lead directly" to use of stronger drugs. "On a world-wide basis there is little evidence of a progression from the use of marijuana to that of opiates or hallucinogens."

The casualty rate from LSD is far high and more apparent than any from marijuana. Bad inspired fantasies have led a seeds have been reported to trips or freak-outs have sent a few to death by jumping out have caused anxiety and small parade of youths to windows or walking on a high-chotic reactions sometimes. hospitals with panic reactions, way in the belief they could fly. Barbiturates can be lethal. Pills with psychotic episodes that or were invisible. pills can take a toll of mind and last days, weeks or months. Other drugs are not always as body.

The Kids Who Shouldn't use drugs are the ones most likely to do so and to be hurt by them.

Appleton Youth Gets Probation For Delinquency

A 14-year-old Appleton boy was found delinquent Monday in Outagamie County Juvenile Court and placed under the custody of the county department of Social Services for two years.

C. Bernard Dillett, acting juvenile court judge, directed that the boy undergo a professional evaluation pending possible incarceration at a state correctional institution.

The youth pleaded guilty to six charges, three of them disorderly conduct complaints involving behavior at school. The other three complaints involved truancy from home and school, and running away from home. The boy had been in juvenile court before and was on supervision to juvenile authorities when the offenses occurred.

According to the petition, the youth became verbally abusive to teachers at an Appleton junior high school last Sept. 28, Oct. 23 and May 13. In the September incident, the petition says, the youth threatened to bring a gun into the school and to set the school afire. In the October incident, the petition says the boy threatened a teacher with a chain.
